Monorail Link With B.C.?

VANCOUVER (CP)—Should the Seattle World Fair monorail prove an operational and financial success it will be extended afterward to connect cities of the Pacific northwest possibly eventually including Vancouver — John B. Carleton, president of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, said today.

IRA Gives Up Rebels Dump Arms

DUBLIN (AP)—The outlawed Irish Republican Army announced last night it has abandoned its campaign of bombings and shootings against the partition of Ireland. It added its members have dumped their arms.

The IRA decision was made public in a 1,000-word statement distributed to Dublin newspapers. It said the campaign had been called off because of lack of public support. "It is good news that the campaign of violence in the vicinity of the border has been called off. It was a policy which Irish public opinion had rejected decisively."

Immediate welcome from the government of the republic of Ireland. A statement by Justice Minister Charles Haughey said: "It is good news that the campaign of violence in the vicinity of the border has been called off. It was a policy which Irish public opinion had rejected decisively."

Homework At School —At Night

STOKE ON TRENT, England (Reuters) — Some 30,000 local schoolchildren who prefer watching television westerns to doing their homework may find themselves herded back to the classrooms for an extra two hours every night.

Education officials say it may be the only way to get homework done.

Diem Escapes As Planes Blast Palace

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Two fighter-bombers with markings of the South Viet Nam air force, blasted President Ngo Dinh Diem's palace with bombs, rockets and machine-guns today. But Radio Saigon announced an hour later that Diem and his family were safe.

The attackers also strafed Diem's palace.

The 61-year-old bachelor president, his brother Ngo Dinh Nhu and Nhu's wife were in the palace at the time.

USED BY NAVY

The government broadcast said one of the planes, identified by U.S. sources as AD-6 Skyraiders, crashed north of the capital. This plane is an attack craft used by the U.S. Navy during the Second World War and supplied by the United States to South Viet Nam's air force.

IN FLAMES

It was not immediately known who piloted the planes or what started the attack. The only military movements inside Saigon were by government troops setting up a defence perimeter around the palace, one wing of which was left in flames by the planes.

PILOT ARRESTED

A report from South Viet Nam press agency received in Tokyo said the planes were piloted by rebel members of the South Viet Nam Air Force and that the pilot of the plane that crashed had been arrested.

U.S. officials in Washington, after receiving reports from Saigon, regarded the aerial attack as an isolated incident and not a widespread conspiracy to

Quebec Plans Sweep

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — Premier Jean Lesage disclosed yesterday the provincial government plans to set up a provincial lottery once the Criminal Code of Canada has been amended.

He told a Quebec Federation of Labor delegation his government had asked federal Justice Minister Fulton to give "serious and official consideration" to the Quebec government's request for an amendment to the code, which bars lotteries.

LIKE IRISH

The labor group had urged the government to set up a provincial lottery similar to the Irish lottery which sweepsstakes. Revenues could go to public welfare projects, it suggested.

Mr. Lesage told the delegation his government had been discussing the proposed amendments to the Criminal Code with the federal justice department for the past 18 months, and Mr. Fulton had said a year ago his legal experts were preparing "an official report."

Instant A-Arms

OTTAWA (CP)—The government may have found a tentative, if awkward, way out of the nuclear weapons impasse—a fast delivery system for nuclear warheads from the United States in event of war.

Warheads Stand Irks U.S.

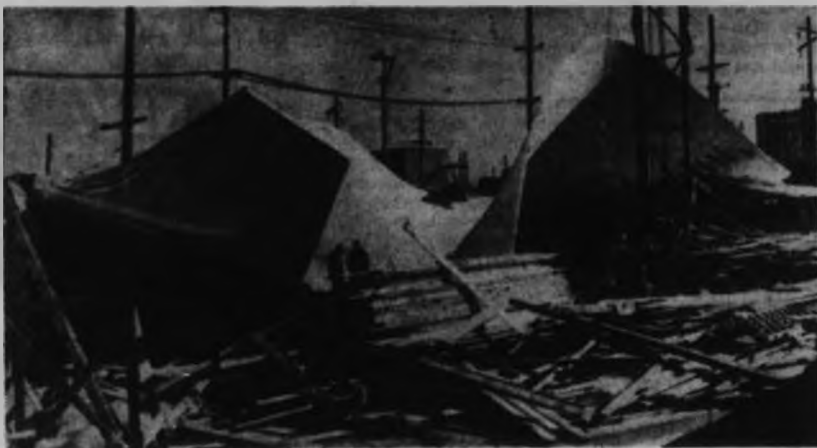

WASHINGTON (CP)—United States military and diplomatic sources expressed disappointment Monday with the latest position of Prime Minister Diefenbaker on nuclear warheads.

They said that if the prime minister maintains his present stand no American warheads will be available for Canada's Bomarc missiles in time of peace.

American authorities said the Kennedy administration has no plans for asking Congress to revise the law which requires the U.S. to retain custody and control over all her nuclear warheads.

The president is opposed to the spread of nuclear weapons control. A key Western proposal in the 18-country disarmament negotiations opening at Geneva March 14 will be a ban on the spread of nuclear weapons among non-nuclear powers.

The U.S. has been urging Canada for some time to allow American warheads to be stored on Canadian soil, particularly for use in the Bomarc missiles and by fighter and interceptor squadrons.

Fair Gate Falls

Main east entryway to Seattle World Fair, a 40-foot-high laminated wood arch, collapsed into heap of giant splinters yesterday. Gust of wind in thought to have caused the collapse. Fair officials are pondering whether to rebuild the arch or put up substitute gateway. Three men were standing under the entrance when it collapsed but escaped injury. — (AP Photofax).

Sparks from Wire

MLAs Sit On Fences

Verbal fencing on the subject of wire fencing got the legislature all tangled up yesterday.

It all started when Agriculture Minister Richter, explaining amendments to the Temperance Act, said wire manufacturers were no longer making No. 9 and No. 12 gauge wire for fences. In a 38-minute barbed-word debate:

● NDP-CCF leader Robert Strachan spoke out against combines and free enterprise.

● Gordon Dowling (NDP-CCF-Burnaby) made veiled references to fencing regulations imprisoning millions of people in eastern Europe.

● Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz had a ruling challenged and was upheld 31 to 15.

● Premier Bennett said

Eternal Shame

"This is good, free, private enterprise," he said. "They sit around the table to see how much they can gouge out of the farmer."

He said it was the government's responsibility to see farmers weren't victimized by fence manufacturers.

"No, it's not," retorted Mr. Bonner. "Not this government."

"If the government is not prepared to do something to protect the farmers it is to its eternal and undying shame," replied Mr. Strachan.

Mr. Speaker Shantz said that Mr. Strachan should be talking about the principle of the bill.

"It's time people in B.C. knew how farmers have been taken advantage of," retorted Mr. Strachan. "I finish this story during estimates."

Happy U.S. Astronaut Draws Hometown Roars

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. and his family received a joyous, roaring welcome from their neighbors that almost got out of hand when they arrived home from their day of glory at Washington Monday.

Some 750 people — most of them teen-agers and children — were jammed around the house as the Glens arrived at their home in this suburban city across the Potomac River from Washington.

ROPE BROKEN

The cheering crowd pushed forward, broke through the ropes set up by police to hold them back and surged quickly forward. The best the police could do then was to surround the Glens by linking hands around them and escorting them up the driveway.

The Glens went inside but a few minutes later the Lieutenant-Colonel, Mrs. Glenn and

Congressman Frank Chelf (Dem.-Ky.) proposed a bill to grant the award to Glenn and his six fellow astronauts.

Three Lakes Planned For Uplands Park

Oak Bay's public works and parks committee will recommend council approve a five-year park development plan for the 60-acre Uplands Park.

The plan, which calls for expenditure of $74,152, will be built under the winter works program. Cost to the municipality will be $61,102.

The plan reviewed by the committee last night calls for construction of three lakes in the park site, fed by a stream of water from a recirculation pump and main.

Cost of this part of the project is estimated at about $25,000.

The lakes will measure about 100 feet by 80 feet and have a depth of three feet.

"I hope this won't mean we have to hire a bunch of lifeguards for these duck ponds," commented Coun. Allan Cox.

Another major part of the development program is grading, sowing and seeding six acres of playing area. With installation of water supply, this will come to $15,880.

First stage to be undertaken would be construction of a network of culverts, costing approximately $24,900.

Death in Algiers

ALGERS (AP) — Murder struck Algiers every eight minutes through the noon hour Monday while French authorities began a campaign of "explaining peace" to Algeria's elected officials.

THREE WAVES

European gunmen swooped down in three waves on the heart of the city, shooting down all Moslems in sight. Within 90 minutes after 11 a.m., 11 bodies were picked up on the Rue Michelet and the Rue d'Ally, the city's principal shopping streets.

By nightfall, police counted 37 dead and more than 49 wounded in Algiers.

Those dead included two Europeans whose heads were cut off, apparently by revenge-seeking Moslems. Fifteen Moslems were injured when a bomb hidden in a car exploded in the suburb of Moissac Carree.

Down to Earth Astronaut Laughs at Weather

Andrews Air Force Base on the astronaut's arrival from Florida. Glenn and his wife, Annie, wore broad smiles despite steady rain as they moved along parade route from the White House to the Capitol. Addressing a joint sitting of Congress, Glenn pinched nose and laughed when telling members that young Caroline Kennedy's first question on meeting him was: "Where's the monkey?" Final shot shows Glenn making a point during his space flight speech to Congress. The astronaut later called it one of the happiest days of his life. — (AP Photofax.)

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Flesch

"What Is History?" is a brilliant new book by the British historian E. H. Carr (Knopf), which deals with some questions that have been argued among historians for centuries.

Why do things happen the way they happen? What is important, what is unimportant? What should a historian select from the mass of historical data? Should he try to draw conclusions? Should he attempt to prophesy the future? Is there such a thing as progress? Are there any laws to be derived from our knowledge of history?

Cleopatra's Nose

Among the questions he deals with, is the famous problem of Cleopatra's nose. (If Cleopatra's nose had been ugly, Mark Anthony wouldn't have fallen in love with her and the whole course of world history would have been different. Or would it?)

Prof. Carr mentions several other examples of seemingly accidental causes of historic events. For instance, in 1396 the Ottoman sultan Bajazet I was all set to conquer

Is history just a big jumble of accidents? Or is it all fore-ordained? Did Rajazet have

Cold Water Lessens Pain in a Sprain, But Rest the Joint

By JOSEPH MOJNER, MD

Dear Dr. MoJner: What about sprains? Some people say to soak it in hot water, others advise ice water.—Mrs. B. B.

Some people have said optimistically after an injury, "It isn't a break; it's just a sprain." And others, having had experience with a bad sprain, have said, "A sprain is worse than a break."

The word sprain comes from the root meaning "to press out." It is a wrenching and twisting of a joint. The bone doesn't break, but ligaments or cartilage can be torn. Ligaments can be torn loose from the bones to which they are attached. The joint capsule, consisting of fibrous tissue, can be stretched.

INNER BLEEDING

Such an injury may not heal as rapidly as a broken bone. Besides, there invariably is some inner bleeding at the injured place, and hence swelling and pain.

The degree of sprain makes a difference, of course. It also makes a difference whether the joint is one which is under pressure. A sprained ankle, which has to hold up the weight of the body, may thus be more serious than a sprained wrist, which doesn't have to bear such weight.

LIGHT CAST

Treatment of a sprain is more than just heat or cold. With an ankle a light cast may be needed to carry the weight while letting the sprain heal.

Doctors must beware of playing King Canute to a rising tide of social change.

An English-born university professor from Toronto, Dr. John S. Morgan, one of the world's outstanding experts on social security, issued this warning when he paid a one-day visit to Victoria yesterday. "In the 19th Century a doctor was responsible only to his patient, the profession and God," said Dr. Morgan, a professor of social work at the University of Toronto. "Now he is responsible to the public. He can't practise as a single unit any longer."

Must Answer

"He must answer to his partners, to the hospital, must work with the pathologist, the radiologist, the cardiologist. A whole new network of professional relationships has formed."

Technical change has enrolled the physician in a health team. Social change may alter his position further. In time he may come to be a private businessman, and may become a high-salaried employee, on the same plateau as the executives, legal consultants and research scientists for great corporations.

This change of position would leave the physician free of worry about money and administration, Dr. Morgan says, free to devote his time to the practice of medicine.

Ideas Countered

Dr. Morgan's view runs directly counter to those expressed by doctors in their briefs to the Royal Canadian Commission on Health Services. Canadian Medical Association spokesmen, nationally and in each province, have religiously supported the "fee-for-service" system of paying doctors. They have opposed any wide extension of the salary system (about one-quarter of Canada's physicians, including public health officers and medical officers of the armed services are on salary now); and they have frowned upon the "capitation"—paying doctors a yearly sum for each patient registered with them, which is the basic system for paying the general practitioners of Britain.

Canadian doctors have linked financial independence with medical independence, arguing that as a rule one factor can not be separated from the other.

Control Lifted

Dr. Morgan's dissenting view is a doctor of social work, not of medicine, is quoted here for contrast.

More people are going to be looking over the physician's shoulder, even if the physician himself controls the system of medical care, Dr. Morgan says. And in some realms, much control has been lifted from the physician's hands.

In Workmen's Compensation in Ontario, a case may be taken away from one physician and given to another who is judged better qualified to handle it. In all the provincial workmen's compensation schemes, the "public interest" is closely guarded.

"Doctors don't like to be answerable to another authority, because they don't teach medicine that way."

Terribly Short

"There is nothing in a doctor's education that qualifies him to engage in public administration. In fact if he is a good doctor... he is trained to be a blazing individualist. That's what makes him a good diagnostician."

"We are terribly short of doctors. Why waste a good doctor to make a bad administrator? This is a waste of professional skill."

"What the doctors want is to make sure that medical judgments are made by professional medical men. There is no earthly reason why doctors should burden themselves with the care of the whole project."

Right Training

"If I were a doctor, I would be working hard—not to control the whole of the administrative machinery, but to make sure the 'professionally sensitive' parts of the operation were adequately staffed by doctors with the right kind of knowledge and training."

"Administration involves a lot of decisions that are not medical—choices based on political, social and economic grounds."

"Department of Veterans Affairs—the DVA hospitals that I know have a number of first-class treatment beds, for acute cases, being used for chronic cases. You're paying for first-class hospital care and using the facilities for something else."

20th Century Challenge

By G. E. Mortimore

"Yes, but wouldn't there be an outcry if any change were proposed?" Dr. Morgan was asked.

"There would. But this is an example of what I mean. The community has a hospital being used for something other than the purposes for which it was intended. At any moment you have to make choices that

Because of a slip of the typewriter, a paragraph in yesterday's article on medical care contained an inaccuracy.

It stated that B.C. doctors, Canadian Medical Association, advocated the existing payment plans be "linked in one."

The paragraph should have read that the doctors advocated linking payment plans in a pool to share bad risks—while retaining the independence of each plan—government aid to be extended to those who could not pay premiums.

are dependent on all kinds of community factors like this. Political choices.

"They used to say you had to have a doctor for a hospital administrator. They no longer say so."

"The doctor has to recognize that he has a new dimension of responsibility. For a substantial part of his time he is spending public money."

Other Areas

"In medical areas, a medical judgment is of vital importance."

"Yes," Dr. Morgan was told, "but wouldn't you say there

SASKATCHEWAN (UPI)—Representatives of Saskatchewan doctors refused to meet with the provincial government's medical care commission, a letter to the commission from Dr. H. D. Dalgleish, president of the College of Physicians and Surgeons here disclosed today.

Dr. Morgan picked up a copy of "A Report of the Committee of Inquiry into the Cost of the National Health Service" which was lying on a desk, and said:

"This isn't a health service. It's a sickness service. Doctors would be much better off saying 'How can we stay healthy?' The people who are worrying about prevention of illness are the salaried physicians—armed forces medical officers and public health officers."

Emotional State

"The doctors have got themselves into an emotional state

"If I were a doctor, I would rather serve in a system controlled by a public authority than by an insurance group. I would rather be controlled by a minister I could help to fire, than by an anonymous individual I couldn't control."

Not Lacking

"Eisenhower issued a warning about the bad effects of too much social security on the initiative. He himself was the beneficiary of a complete system of social security. I haven't noticed that generals are lacking in initiative."

"When doctors talk against salary, they are thinking in the clichés of the 19th century. The people with real initiative now are those on salary. They are the salaried, most secure members of the staff of the large corporations. Health care, decent living conditions, high pay... they are given these benefits in order to encourage initiative. Why should it be wrong to do this for doctors?"

No Worries

"Doctors are a professional group. Why should they want to live a life of risk in terms of social and economic security?"

"The specialists in Britain say 'Thank God for this scheme. It has given me reasonably good conditions for my profession. I don't have to worry about collecting bills. Instead of having to cater to a lot of well-to-do people who don't have much wrong with them,' the specialists say, 'we have only to see the patients who really need our help.'"

But doctors argue that general practitioners—as opposed to specialists—are not so well off under Britain's National Health Service.

Mac May Attend Summit Talks In Emergency

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Macmillan, going slightly further than President Kennedy, told Soviet Premier Khrushchev Monday that he might attend a summit disarmament conference if this would break a deadlock or accelerate agreement.

Both Macmillan and Kennedy rejected the premier's invitation to attend personally the March 14 opening of the 18-nation disarmament conference in Geneva.

But the British leader went further than the United States president's statement that he might attend the conference before June 1—the date it is scheduled to report back to the United Nations—only if sufficient progress is made.

Macmillan said he might be willing to attend summit talks at Geneva in the event of deadlock or if substantial progress could be consolidated—and added that either eventuality might arise "soon after the work of the committee begins."

The British leader said he is "ready for personal participation at the right time" but asked Khrushchev to "look again with sympathy" at the Anglo-American proposal to start the disarmament conference at foreign ministers level.

Russia Urges Space 'Union'

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Russia's chief United Nations delegate Valerian Zorin expressed hope Monday that a coming UN meeting on space would lay the groundwork for Soviet-United States co-operation in that field.

At a press conference, Zorin said President Kennedy last Wednesday hailed Lt.-Col. John H. Glenn Jr.'s space flight as suggesting that the two big powers pool their efforts to explore space.

Zorin, a deputy foreign minister, said the Soviet Union intended to co-operate with the U.S. and all other members of the 28-nation UN committee on the peaceful uses of outer space.

Zorin said that in South Vietnam, the Americans "are getting bogged down in a very disadvantageous and politically unjustified war which will entail very unpleasant consequences for them." He said the U.S. was suggesting that the two big

Death Zone Widened

East Berliners Evicted by Reds

BERLIN (UPI)—Communist police evicted 100 East Berlin families from border areas yesterday to widen the death zone between East and West. The Reds threw tear gas grenades at Western newsmen observing the event.

Residents were forced to carry furniture out of the houses in freezing weather and into vans. The action took place in suburban areas facing the American sector in the south and the French sector in the north.

within the City of Victoria and the Municipality of Esquimalt will be programmed between March 1st and March 31st, 1962. This may cause temporary but harmless discoloration of water. Any consumer to whom color of water supplied (such as laundry) is of vital importance will be notified in advance of operations in his vicinity if a request for such notification is received at the office of the undersigned, City Hall, Victoria, Tel. EV 5-5711. In no case, however, can the City accept responsibility for any damage arising out of the use of discolored water. Consumers are therefore advised to be on the alert for temporary discoloration.

Make sure that you provide for yourself in your Life Insurance program...

Your life insurance should, first of all, provide for your wife and children. But the job doesn't stop there. Make sure that you also include INCOME FOR YOURSELF. You would need it, if you should become disabled. And you will need money to live on when you retire and your earnings stop. Life insurance with savings values can then provide you with a guaranteed income which you can't lose, and can't outlive. At the same time, part of your protection can be continued on a "paid-up" basis... And during your savings period, if you should need cash in an emergency, it will serve as the best kind of collateral.

In Fresh Hands

IT IS PERHAPS rather late in the day to reorient the whole affair but there is the promise now that the centennial program will move forward with the dynamic urge typical of show business. The U.S. professionals hired to take over can be depended on to inspire it, as one alderman says, with "vigor and vitality."

There is the tacit admission of course that Victoria is incapable of organizing the celebration of its own 100th birthday, but at least this puts an end to the whiffing that has gone on and it does relieve civic committees of any further responsibility.

Like Pilate on a famous occasion they will be able to wash their hands if something doesn't come up to scratch.

The Rogers company promoters are experienced and expert at staging celebrations of this kind, however, and everything should henceforth go with a bang. Certainly the outline of events suggested for the climactic period of July 27-August 4 are spectacular and comprehensive in nature and all going well should make residents and tourists alike sit up and take notice.

Beards, belles, balls, pageants, pancake races, hobby shows, fireworks, etc., added to the sustaining events already in hand by local clubs and organizations, plus the enthusiastic participation of Victorians in general, should when welded together ensure that this summer is a gala one. The Jaycees may not take kindly, however, to robbing the May 24 festival of the crowning of Miss Victoria, the centrepiece of this long-standing event, and care will have to be taken not to dilute the quality of this annual holiday.

No doubt one persuasive feature of the Rogers plan that appealed to the city fathers is the belief that the $34,300 fee to be paid to the promoters can be recouped and possibly with a sizable profit into the bargain. If this proves correct the city will be able to eat its centennial cake and still have it, a very comforting circumstance, although it does suggest that some events at least will carry a substantial admittance charge.

It is perhaps surprising that local merchants should oppose the idea of a civic holiday on the actual birthday date, August 2, which would seem to be most desirable. That day should be the highlight of the whole program, with beads and belles well to the fore in community merriment.

In any case arrangements for the city's 100th birthday should now proceed with a flourish, fairly certain of fine success and to the relief perhaps of aldermen and citizens alike.

Golden Rules

SINCE HE HAS had a few tickets himself for breaking the rules and is currently without his driver's licence, Mr. Gagliardi is perhaps in a delicate position to lecture others about driving habits. But the highway minister is not easily deterred by embarrassment.

There is virtue in the old maxim, also, about not-doing-as-I-do but doing-as-I-say.

Out of his own experience indeed his words gain added weight, and he is also the minister who builds the roads and has some responsibility for seeing that they are properly used.

Mr. Gagliardi was none too apt in his parallel of rabies and car accidents. It is true that a mad dog is invariably shot after biting a person with fatal effect, but because many more people are killed by drinking car drivers than by mad dogs society can scarcely equate the matter by shooting guilty drivers.

He was, of course, voicing this analogy to drive home the ten commandments on driving he put before the legislature. His own somewhat vulnerable position does not detract one iota, either, from their verity. And he was rightly quick to defend the subject as no joke when facetiously assailed by an opposition member.

Highway accidents are certainly no joke but instead a most serious matter. Only because they seem inescapable in view of the multitude of motor vehicles and because the public has become conditioned to accidents do they dull the mind. In fact they are as disastrous as wars, but coming over the years in constant drip their impact has lessened.

Undoubtedly it was a sharp reminder of the need for constant vigilance that Mr. Gagliardi set forth his ten points.

Put in brief these embrace the cardinal principles that should be a fixation with all drivers of motor vehicles; to exercise care at all times, to observe the speed limits, fast or slow, to be courteous in behavior, and to avoid alcohol when driving.

Every thinking person knows that if these things were kept constantly in mind there would be fewer highway accidents. Mr. Gagliardi has done well to restate them. They are golden rules.

Worth Reviving

FROM DABS on the wall, a committee appointed by puzzled aldermen has selected beige and white as the colors to be used in redecorating the exterior of City Hall. Council did well in naming the committee to make the decision, for this color scheme sounds as if it will be bright and attractive without being flamboyant or out of character.

It is to be hoped that business people of the city will follow the example of council and that more and more buildings will blossom in fresh coats of paint for the centenary. As Alderman A. W. Toone has noted, some of the older buildings because of their architectural style can be made particularly attractive through imaginative use of color.

But like the aldermen and their dabs, many and perhaps most citizens find it difficult to visualize what a building—or even a kitchen—will look like if painted with this shade of primrose and that shade of peach.

Early in the centennial planning, the suggestion was made that an advisory group on redecoration should be formed: a committee that could give help in selecting attractive color-schemes and in an unofficial way could encourage neighboring businesses to co-ordinate their plans and avoid shrieking contrasts.

That idea seems to have faded away somewhere along the line. If so, it should be revived.

The impression Victoria makes on visitors in this summer of the centenary and the Seattle world fair will have widespread and long-lasting results, and an advisory committee to foster attractive private improvement of the city's appearance would be a valuable addition to civic services.

BY TOM TAYLOR

AT a shipyard in England, you would notice via the Colonist the other day, Britain's latest, top-secret, nuclear, Dreadnaught submarine is lying loose to the eyes of the curious and envious. It is being fitted out and, perforce, being in a normal waterfront shipyard, fully exposed to view. On the outside at least. Now of course ships are hard things to hide, but they big or small. Governments must worry about them, sometimes. One remembers the secret wartime visit to the Esquimaux drydock of the Queen Elizabeth, sticking its non-secret super-structure high into the air like an Eiffel Tower.

And at a moment in history more precisely crucial than the new Dreadnaught's fitting out.

This is where the West, being democratic and having to take their peoples along with them in all their projects, are at a distinct disadvantage. I doubt the Soviets would arrange matters so that a visiting freighter could lie close to their newest underwater warship, and thus enjoy the view currently at the disposal of a Rumanian vessel berthed near by the British submarine.

Sailors are lining the freighter's rail watching every coming and going of equipment and scientist to the submarine the report says. And probably with cameras and telescopic lenses into the bargain.

By comparison with their vis-a-vis the West is an open book. Hopes, fears, plans, opinions, projects—all are canvassed widely and in public. Except for classified details the whole world knows what is afoot in the West.

You can't have your cake and eat it too, of course. Political freedom as we know and like it depends on as large an awareness as possible of what's going on. We keep our governments under control, to a large extent, by way of member what elections can do—by requiring that as much be revealed to us as is consistent with national security.

And we take leave to argue about the extent of the latter. By and large our governments would have a hard job trying to slip one over us. Certainly not with a submarine. It would be a local issue somewhere even before the contract was ordered, for one thing, and that is never sub-room. I can't imagine VMD getting an order to build a Canadian submarine and no one outside the yard ever getting to hear about it.

If this is a bad thing the opposite, to our way of thinking, would be worse. And if it is a handicap in the rivalry of international preparedness, as it is, this can't be helped. We must offset the disadvantage by other means.

Still and all there's a limit to an open season. It does seem rather peculiar that so top-secret a type of new naval vessel as this British nuclear submarine should be as easy of view to strangers. Especially when they come from behind the iron curtain.

There is really no call to be too magnanimous. One might think it none too difficult to have secured this particular vessel from suspect Peeping Toms, even in an ordinary non-secret shipyard.

The freighter's crew, admittedly, won't be able to see what's going on down below in the submarine. But one supposes that the less they do see the better.

Europe—New World Power

A Dramatic Turn for Britain

By CHARLES NICHOLS
(Fifth of Seven Articles)

LAST August 9, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan addressed a letter to Ludwig Erhard as president of the Council of Ministers of the European community: Monsieur le President the wretched:

I have the honor to inform Your Excellency that in accordance with the resolution of both Houses of Parliament, on the 3rd of August, Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland wish to open negotiations with a view to acceding to the Treaty of Rome.

The letter was welcomed by the six members of the European community—the new power that we call Europe—as a "turning point in post-war European politics." It marked the end of five years of hesitation and indecision in Mr. Macmillan's government.

It brought to the British people, with surprising suddenness, the realization that their nation was approaching a dramatic turn in its historic course.

It was a shudder of apprehension and real alarm to the "old Dominion" of the Commonwealth.

From the very start of the European negotiations leading up to the signing of the Treaty of Rome the "constitution" of Europe the British had shied away from its concept—the creation of an economic and political union or confederation in the industrial heart of Europe; a power which, when completely fashioned, would be vastly more potent than the sum of its national parts.

For one thing, Britain found it difficult to reconcile membership in the new power with its special relations with the Commonwealth—economic, political, historic.

For another, the British were hesitant to assume the political as well as economic obligations that were implicit in the terms of the treaty.

And, undoubtedly, the Macmillan government was loath to abandon the traditional detachment that the United Kingdom has enjoyed as being part of, but not in, Europe.

Having decided not to take part, Britain employed its not inconsiderable talent for compromise; it would set up a parallel or rival bloc with the common purpose of reducing European tariffs but without the rigidity and political implications of a formal treaty.

For a while, the United Kingdom believed that France would join in this looser coalition which was given the name of the European Free Trade Association.

It is sometimes said that General de Gaulle is a man of whims, and nobody knows when he is going to change his whim. In any event, France swung away from the British Free Trade group and plunged into the formal compact of the Rome Treaty. That left in the Free Trade Group—The Seven—the U.K., Sweden, Norway, Austria, Denmark, Switzerland and Portugal.

By the end of the first four-year stage of the European development, a comparison between the two rival blocs was impressive—and, to the United Kingdom, depressing.

In terms of gross national product (the sum of production of goods and services), the growth of Europe had far outstripped that of the British-led European Free Trade Association. And lagging behind both groups was the United Kingdom.

In terms of industrial production, the post-war "miracle" put Germany, Italy and France far ahead of the United Kingdom. Austria and Portugal, among the nations of the Free Trade bloc, showed impressive advances.

But, down at the bottom of the scale, were Belgium, Sweden—and Britain. On the continent, economies were booming; in Britain, in spite of a post-austerity affluence and rising consumption, the economy was slowing down significantly. Some said it was stagnating; few described it in much more encouraging terms.

There were those who blamed the Conservative government for allowing this state of affairs to develop. Mr. Macmillan's election slogan—"You've never had it so good"—reflected a surface condition

Britain enjoying an affluent life, but production being consumed at home; capital investment down, a deficit in external trade, and the pound sterling wobbling.

By the end of 1961, there appeared to be no alternative but for Britain—as chief among partners in the Free Trade Association—to make overtures to the Europe bloc. To let matters slide would be disastrous.

There was no longer, in fact, any choice. To do otherwise would be to sit outside a dynamic, burgeoning market rising to new heights of prosperity, and separated from it by a common tariff wall.

Said the weekly New Statesman: "Adherence to the Common Market, though undoubtedly risky, may be the sole means by which British industry and finance can be jolted into a new dynamic mold. Little England in isolation, slowly decaying into insignificance, might in the end face a catastrophic challenge by the newly industrialized giants such as Russia and Japan."

There is a general agreement that British industry and finance need a jolt, the jolt of open competition with the Europe complex. The New Statesman, being a slightly leftist publication, doesn't mention labor. But inherent in British inclusion in the European community is a painful readjustment of the traditional British labor forms.

Today, even as in the days when the British were struggling to rebuild out of the bombed wreckage left from the war, British labor clings doggedly to old methods, old habits.

As one Tyne shipbuilder has been quoted as saying: "It takes so long to get through to labor these days that by the time we have their co-operation on new methods, we've lost another order abroad." Management isn't by any means always dynamic in Britain; but where it is, there is no doubt that it is damped by labor's unwillingness to go along with it.

So entry into the European community, the inevitable deflation that would result, the new competition to industry, finance and labor, are seen as important stimulants to restore a dynamic economy to the United Kingdom.

Strangely enough, after early, adamant opposition to British involvement in Europe, organized labor now has come around to a position of general support. In both government and parliamentary labor ranks, there is some opposition; but a majority in both parties supports the overtures today.

Opposition may grow as full implications of the move become more generally known, are debated more widely.

If Canadians were slow to realize what was taking place in the "quiet revolution" in Europe, Britons were shown no more awareness. It was not until the eve of the British approach to Brussels that the public debate really began.

Lord Beaverbrook's newspapers, of course, took up the lance first and most truculently, against what it called the "hydra-headed monster" that is the European community. Fearing a weakening of Commonwealth links, the Canadian-born publisher was quick to launch the whole question into the public arena. He is sustaining the attack with vigor.

Then, last September, a group of young back-bench Conservatives organized The Anti-Common Market League—"Commonwealth Before Common Market"—to take their slogan to the hustings.

This group, which is growing impressively, organizes meetings wherever in the country they can find an audience, and speakers whenever they are invited.

"Membership in the Common Market," they argue, "must mean a permanent irrevocable loss of sovereignty and independence, for which we have already had to fight two wars in this century against continental tyrants. Our affairs would very soon be administered by supranational bodies on the continent instead of by our own election representatives at Westminster."

The debate is becoming vigorous; it has really just begun.

Dateline: Europe

New Vistas

By OTTO VON HANSEBORG

THE conflict between Peking and Moscow is beginning to affect the European Communist parties. In the fall and early winter the press of the extreme left was still able to keep silent. Now the uneasiness can no longer be hidden from the faithful.

Since the middle of November Communist papers everywhere, from Italy to Sweden and from France to Austria, thus admitted the inner contradictions of the Eastern bloc, though trying to minimize them. After the break between Moscow and Peking on December 10 they had to make a further step and grudgingly recognize the magnitude of the crisis gripping the Marxist-Leninist world.

Communist publications which till the New Year had limited themselves to writing on the Russian point of view, began to speak of dissensions within their own group. The tone reveals that even in Europe's best disciplined parties some forces gravitate toward Peking while the majority still seems loyal to the Kremlin.

Thus the Belgian "Drapeau Rouge" (The Red Flag) writes for the second time of growing nervousness in the rank and file. The obviously scared language shows that Peking's offensive among the Western European Communists is stronger and has gained more momentum than the Muscovites expected.

The importance of this trend is obvious. Peking's force of attraction, undisputed in the Afro-Asian countries, and now increasingly felt in the Old World, should not surprise us. Despite their Marxist-Leninist creed the mass of Communists have remained human beings. They live in an atmosphere of freedom. They cannot be fully isolated from their surroundings, despite their leader's desperate efforts. News is available to them which can be kept from the Soviet people.

They thus cannot escape the feeling that under the Stalinist system as continued by Khrushchev they are not an independent political agent but the instruments of foreign interests. Communists do not often admit this.

One will nevertheless find in discussing with them, especially by their defensive reactions, that subconsciously they resent the humiliating role they are compelled to play.

Peking, taking up the Trotskyite thesis, offers them an alternative. By placing the political decisions of World Communism not in the hands of the governments but in those of the parties struggling to attain power, Mao Tse-tung's followers re-establish the feeling of personal dignity among the left-wing totalitarians in the free countries. This explains the growing Chinese influence. From this point of view the Communist convention of next summer will be of the greatest interest.

For the Western diplomacy the crisis of the Marxist-Leninist camp opens new vistas. Even among Communists, Moscow is increasingly isolated. Its dynamism, its influence and consequently its power dwindles. By the same token the Kremlin's freedom of manoeuvre in international affairs declines. There is hence no reason for us to be in a hurry. With time working against Khrushchev, we have no interest to activate negotiations when the starting point is bound to improve for us with each passing day.

The Packback

OF GREGORY CLARK

On weekends, you see numbers of young soldiers in uniform, all shined up for the weekend pass, standing in the wrong places along the highways, respectfully looking for a lift.

Where there is an intersection of highways, in such places as a motorist would have let his soldier out to pick up a lift in a new direction, you see the lads standing exactly where nobody, or hardly anybody, would risk stopping. With traffic on your tail, at fifty, sixty miles an hour, you have to see a soldier well ahead, to give you time to draw over to the shoulder. And certainly you don't want to halt on the curve of an intersection or cloverleaf.

A good quarter-mile past an intersection, and standing well back of the pavement on the shoulder, was a soldier I picked up with immediate response to his uniformed thumb. When I commented on the habits of many of his fellow soldiers, he said:

"Ah, I'm infantry! These other characters are Signal Corps, Army Service, Remy. They're indoor types. It takes the infantry to march a couple of hundred yards to a wide place in the road."

LETTERS to the Editor

To be considered for publication in whole or in part letters must be on subjects of general interest, not more than 200 words in length, and, if signed with a pen-name, must be accompanied by the writer's name and address.

Apparently, there are those whose tendency is to depict us as without roots? Witness: (Mrs.) A. B. Marshall in Sunday's Colonist. Roots are something on which to base your creation.

They are a beginning, visible or not. We didn't begin here, our roots are in the past, whatever our origin and it is impossible to separate Victoria Regina from ourselves, even if we would. She was and is a presence in our midst, regardless of race, color or creed. For the past, present and future merge, into each moment of our existence.

University Title

Your timely Feb. 23 editorial regarding Victoria's failure, to date, to secure a university title for our Victoria College merits the attention and deep concern of all public-spirited citizens, naturally including those here and elsewhere who subscribed to the $2,000,000 expansion fund. Inasmuch as 2 1/2 years have elapsed since application was officially made for formal "university" recognition, with neither legislative action nor any indication of immediate co-operative concern by those empowered to grant the title, one wonders whether some university magnates on the mainland are blocking Victoria's educational progress and prestige. Are discriminatory and prejudicial attitudes involved, and are we free from any painful apprehension of Vancouver's UBC and Victoria rivalry? Who is challenging or delaying the well-earned right of Victoria College to a university title? Surly appropriate and effective action can be taken to correct deplorably obstructive or dilatory tendencies without further delay.

Canada to Do Utmost To Ease Berlin Stress

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will do everything it can to ease East-West tensions over Berlin. Prime Minister Diefenbaker said in a Commons reply Monday to H. W. Herridge, House leader of the CCF-New Democratic Party group.

Mr. Herridge asked for the prime minister's comments on British Foreign Secretary Home's suggestion that a modus vivendi be arranged on the recognition of East German rights.

Discussions are being held with Manitoba and Saskatchewan officials about federal-provincial crop insurance problems, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Monday.

He told Hazen Argue (L-Arsinbold) in the Commons that the two provinces had asked the federal government to reimburse them against losses under the crop insurance program. The discussions were still at the official level.

Hazen Argue, who joined the Liberals Friday five days after quitting the New Democratic Party, left by air Monday for Regina and a speaking engagement there tonight.

Resources Minister Dinwiddie told Harold Winch (CCF-Vancouver East) there has been no change in the situation since 1958 concerning the suggestion that British Columbia's Garibaldi Park become a national park.

Airliner Crash Takes 22 Lives

CARACAS (AP)—A Venezuelan airliner flying through clouds smashed into a mountain Sunday, killing the 22 persons aboard. All were reported to be Venezuelans.

The twin-engine turbo-prop plane of Avensa Airlines was coming in for a landing on the resort island of Margarita, off Venezuela's east coast. It burst into flames after it crashed.

Don't Ask About Power Sale

Have Faith, Says Bonner

Opposition members should have faith in B.C. instead of demanding to know where the government will market the power from both the Peace and the Columbia schemes, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said yesterday.

"If people want economic proof for everything they do there are many days when it wouldn't pay to get out of bed," he told the legislature during the budget debate.

Without faith, said Mr. Bonner, the Canadian Pacific Railway which linked Canada from coast to coast would never have been built.

IN SNOWSHOES

"And where would this country be without it?" he asked. "In snowshoes," replied Premier Bennett.

The attorney-general said power generated in B.C. last year totalled 13,800,000 kilowatt hours yet the estimates for 15 years hence were 43,000,000 kilowatt hours.

EMBARRASSED

In addition, the Gordon royal commission on Canada's economic prospects showed the installed power capacity would increase more than fourfold to 12,500,000 horsepower by 1975.

"Electrical progress must be ahead of its time," said Mr. Bonner.

AS ESTIMATED

He said the government was planning for the needs of a B.C. population of 3,000,000 as estimated by the Gordon commission for 1975.

And, he said, if either big project was taken up in full as soon as it was completed it would only be because there had been years of brownouts.

IT'S PAYING

When the provincial government decided to put in a fast ferry service between here and the mainland there were protests it would be too expensive, it would take years before it would pay and there would be large deficits for years to come.

"The ferry system is paying," he said. "It was a matter of faith on our part that it should and it did."

NO DOUBTS

"Are there any doubts about the economic feasibility of the Peace River development?" asked Tony Gargrave (NDP-CCF-Mackenzie).

"Not in my mind," said Mr. Bonner.

The government would be derelict in its duty if it didn't plan to meet all the requirements of B.C.'s future population, he said.

MANY ASKED

Mr. Bonner said many people asked for the government's policy on the export of power.

"I feel that unless Canada adopts a policy of exporting electrical surpluses she is going into the next decade of this century with one of her economic hands tied behind her back."

Premier Corrects Sacred

Social Credit member Bert Price (Vancouver-Burrard) was corrected by Premier Bennett in the legislature yesterday when he said inmates of Willingdon School for Girls "are not worth very much ... their credit is low."

"No, Mr. Member, a lot of them will become good citizens," said the premier, obviously a little surprised and a little embarrassed.

CHANGED TACK

Mr. Price was quick to change his tack a little.

"They would be better citizens more quickly, if they had better training," he said.

Mr. Price blamed professional social workers and a "permissive" system in the school for the reason 20 per cent of the women in Oakalla are "graduates" of Willingdon.

INCOMMISSIBLES

As to charges by former reform school social worker David Barrett (NDP-CCF-Dewdney) that girls learn to become prostitutes and drug addicts while in the school, Mr. Price said they weren't sent to the school until they were classed as "incorrigible."

Firm Didn't Violate Agreement on Oil

Attorney-General Bonner said yesterday Westcoast Transmission did not violate its agreement with the government in the construction of a crude oil pipeline to the Vancouver refineries.

And he charged the New Democratic Party-CCF with trying to frighten away investors from B.C.

Earlier in the session several opposition members charged the company and its president, oil magnate Frank McMahon, had made a profit of $11,000,000 by stock profiteering. This occurred, they said, despite an assurance from the government no trading in preferred stocks would be allowed.

NO TRADING

Yesterday Mr. Bonner said no preferred trading had taken place.

The attorney-general quoted from an executive of Westcoast who wrote that an independent survey showed it would have cost Western Pacific Products and Crude Oil Pipeline $3,940,000 for a right-of-way down the route. Westcoast then sold part of its natural gas pipeline right-of-way to the company for $3,750,000 worth of shares at the per value of $5 each.

"They collected on the same right-of-way twice," called Alex Macdonald (NDP-CCF-Vancouver East).

"You're an embarrassment to the investing public," retorted Mr. Bonner.

He said the only way to stop stock profits would be to initiate a capital gains tax such as they have in the U.S.

He said he felt such a tax would be "inappropriate."

Biggest bargain here is the gasoline

You don't buy gasoline off the shelves in your supermarket, but if you did you'd find Esso one of the cheapest items.

Motorists throughout B.C. buy Esso gasoline for an average price of only 6 1/2 cents a pound. Compared with other commodities in everyday use that's a real bargain. Of the 6 1/2 cents paid per pound for Esso gasoline, two cents is for federal and provincial taxes that provide such things as social services and new highways. To help bring you this bargain, Imperial Oil is searching for oil in northern B.C. ...drilling wells which will bring B.C. oil to B.C. customers ...has built a modern refinery near Vancouver, new pipe lines, modern marketing facilities. To do these things Imperial has invested more than $80,000,000 in B.C. since 1951 alone.

And yet Imperial receives less on the average for the Esso gasoline it sells today than it did ten years ago ... and Esso gasoline today is much more powerful than ten years ago.

Here's how the price of Esso gasoline compares with the average market price of some other commodities in B.C.

Esso gasoline	6 cents per pound
Tobacco	9 cents per pound
Flour	12 cents per pound
Apples	12 cents per pound
Soft drinks	12 cents per pound
Milk	9 cents per pound

IWA Sure of Loyalty

Hillcrest Petition Rumors Cited

DUNCAN — Rumors of a petition seeking a recount in the so-called Hillcrest emergency fund referendum were circulating before the final ballot-count. IWA officials said Monday.

They were commenting on a Columnist story Sunday which said Hillcrest and other sawmill workers who are IWA members still oppose the fund.

BUS DISPUTE

It will raise $12,000 to help Hillcrest loggers idle since Jan. 2 because of a free-bus dispute.

The union officials, pointing out the referendum passed with a slight majority, said:

EVERY CONFIDENCE

"We have every confidence in the loyalty of the membership of our local union and feel sure every member is prepared to accept a majority decision."

"Whenever we have dealt personally with any dissatisfaction expressed, we find it has arisen as a result of some slight misunderstanding and that, when this has been cleared up, it has met with complete satisfaction."

DISCOUNT VALUE

"The report in the Columnist also dealt with reports purporting to emanate from certain members derogatory to the union," they said.

"In view, however, that no names were provided, we are inclined to discount the value of these reports. We do not discount the possibility, however, that certain operators are quite prepared to sow a few seeds of mischief in order to attempt to create some discord.

"From our experience such attempts usually do not have any permanent success.

"It should also be noted that, in keeping with the democratic nature of our local union, our bylaws contain a provision that a special meeting of our local union can be held if 20 members sign a petition requesting it."

MLA Asks Air Service For Ailing

A request for a $200,000 British Columbia ambulance service, under the British Columbia Hospital Insurance Service, to serve isolated B.C. communities was made in the legislature yesterday by Frank Calder (NDP-CCF-Atlin).

Mr. Calder said a person in his constituency at Telegraph Creek faces a $400 ambulance bill to get to the Whitehorse hospital.

He said an ambulance service would provide an incentive and a sense of security to those individuals who are forerunners to industrial development, such as prospectors, surveyors and settlers.

Argue Seat Byelection Demanded

REGINA (CP)—The Assiniboia federal New Democratic Party Constituency Association Monday asked Prime Minister Diefenbaker to call a byelection in that Saskatchewan constituency now represented by Hazan Argue. The request was made following a meeting of the Assiniboia NDP executive.

Bruce Wilson, association president, said a telegram also was sent to Mr. Argue, former CCF-NDP parliamentary leader, asking his immediate resignation as MP for Assiniboia.

The accident occurred near Blueberry, 15 miles north of here Sunday.

Miss Elouise Harrison on Law Courts steps.

Woman Lawyer's First Case Initiates New Courthouse

A woman lawyer taking her first case to superior court initiated Victoria's brand new courthouse yesterday.

Appearing at bar for the first time (other than police court hearings in Nanaimo) in the gleaming new County Court room was Miss Elouise Harrison of Crofton.

DAMAGES SUIT
The case, a suit for damages arising from a two-car crash near Chemainus in January, 1961, is being heard before Judge J. B. Clearhugh.

Counsel for the defence is former city MLA George Gregory. Judge Clearhugh addressed a special welcome to counsel and noted that Mr. Gregory, Miss Harrison and himself were all descendants of Victoria's pioneer citizens.

NEW PHASE
"We are proud to be the first to hold court in this magnificent new building," he said. "It is fitting perhaps that we should open proceedings in a new phase of Victoria's legal history."

Judge Clearhugh, born here in 1887, said Public Works Minister W. N. Chant and his staff should be congratulated on the "fine job they have done."

LINK WITH PAST
"We have had three law court buildings in this city and the last two are filled with memories of the last century."

"I confess I was somewhat loath to leave the old building on Bastion Square . . . but I am sure this new courthouse will have a future as illustrious as the past."

The link with the past referred to by the judge was given added significance by the presence of Mr. Gregory, who, as former MLA for Victoria, campaigned in the legislature for a new courthouse.

SIXTH MEMBER
Miss Harrison, who was admitted to the bar in 1958, traces her family's legal history in B.C. back to 1858 when her grandfather, Eli Harrison, came to Victoria. She is the sixth member of the family to practice law in this province.

The daughter of Duncan lawyer H. R. Harrison, she is the niece of former Victoria mayor Claude Harrison, the late Judge Paul P. Harrison.

Fireman Safe After Fall From Stairs

A fireman narrowly escaped injury Sunday when a fire escape at the rear of 406 Simcoe collapsed while firemen fought a blaze in the house.

For the most part the small but stubborn fire centred around the fire escape near the top of the house, causing damage to the steps, a landing and an exit door.

One fireman reached the ground safely. Behind him, Alf Adamson felt the landing give out beneath his weight and he plunged to the ground. He was not injured. Damage to the house was light.

Festival of Romance

Canada's Biggest Tourist Event, Says Promoter

STONEWALL, Man. (CP)—Dick Shepherd is an incurable romantic who wants to mix, match or mate the unwed of North America.

The burly former Second World War fighter pilot has set the last week of June in nearby Winnipeg as the time when this can come about at his first Canadian International Festival of Romance.

"I don't see how this thing can go wrong," he said in an interview. "It will be the biggest tourist attraction ever to hit Canada, bar none."

"If things take their natural course, then July 4 would be a wonderful time to have a mass wedding in Winnipeg, the largest in the history of North America."

Mr. Shepard originated the idea for this small town a few miles north of Winnipeg. However, he said: "This town is just too small."

"Last year when it was mentioned in the paper, we had requests for blocks of rooms that would have swamped the place, and a thing like this would probably draw 50,000 people or more."

Mr. Shepard has formed a committee planning several events at the festival for participants, whether or not they achieve the marital state. "We hope to have dances and perhaps book a stage show."

"Naturally, we're going to have to limit this thing," he said. "There will be a registration fee that will keep out the disinterested."

Mr. Shepard said he was not too certain how a mass marriage would work under Manitoba law. However, even couples signing an "intent to wed" document would lead to an interesting ceremony.

The boy's lungs were said to be "almost completely full of sawdust."

Develop Weak Spots

Industrial stocks were lower on balance at Montreal and Toronto. Papers were generally lower but MacMillan-Powell River was an exception being traded heavily up to $195.

Weak among metals were Aluminum Ltd. and International Nickel, the latter being off two points.

Banks were lower, as were the major refining oils and Westcoast Transmission dropped a point among the gas lines.

Rothmans dropped to a new low of $10 among tobaccos.

At Vancouver, mines were largely responsible for a heavy turnover. Grandeur slipped to $345, and Cragmont eased to $394. Western Mines was strong rising to 2.11 at one time but it dropped to 1.36 at the close. Kamloops, Cowichan and Friday were all lower, but Caribou Gold was firm at 1.50 and Torwest rose to 53.

Trading was light at New York where prices were lower for the third consecutive session. Some brokers believe another test may be made on the January lows.

Most steels, motors, chemicals, rails, drugs and tobaccos were lower. Even a report that Ford is to put out a Volkswagen type car failed to stir the market although Ford stock was slightly higher at the close.

Bond prices showed little change at Montreal although an easier undertone was noted.

Grain Markets

WINNIPEG (CP) - Most grains were showing firmer undertones in fairly dull trading at the close.

Oats and barley also showed a firmer undertone in light offerings with most of the sales on the domestic front.

CHICAGO (AP) - The grain futures market was mostly steady to firm.

Hotspur Reaches Cup Semi

LONDON (AP)—Tottenham Hotspur advanced to the semi-finals of the European Cup soccer playdowns Monday night by defeating Dukla of Czechoslovakia, 4-1, before 65,000 fans who watched through snow flurries.

Dukla had won the first game of the two-game, total-point series, 1-0, in Prague. Centre-forward Bobby Smith and inside-left Dave Mackay each scored twice for Hotspur.

PRESTON ADVANCES
In two other important matches played yesterday, Preston North End reached the quarter-finals of the Football Association Cup by blanking Liverpool, 1-0, and in a third-round replay in the Scottish Football Association Cup, Dunfermline blanked Stenhousemuir, 3-0.

Preston is at home to Manchester United in its next game and Dunfermline plays at St. Mirren.

The replay scheduled between Sheffield United and Blackpool and a Division III match between Coventry and Port Vale were postponed because of snow.

AT THE 19th

With Harry Young

Instruction courses for junior golfers will be held again starting in early April under the auspices of the Victoria District Committee, with most of the local professional golfers taking part.

Courses of four lessons for beginners with a registration fee of $1 per student will be open to both boys and girls, and the program will conclude with a nine-hole tournament. Youngsters will receive their lessons at the course nearest their schools. Pros Laurie Carroll (Victoria), Joe Pryke (Gorge Vale), Walter Gravin (Uplands), Bill Court (Colwood) and Dick Mann (Cedar Hill) will be in charge at their home clubs.

Munn will also handle Ardmore if it is necessary to use that course.

Classes will also be formed for juniors who are already golfers, and will provide an advance practice session and a round of golf with a professional.

Last year 150 boys and girls took part in the beginners' classes.

To provide the funds for this junior program, the Victoria District Committee relies on the B.C. Golf Association, which in turn draws part of its junior revenue from the National Golf Week competition.

Local players are thus reminded that to support the program for their own youngsters they should make a point of competing in National Golf Week.

National Golf Week this year is from Saturday, June 2, to Sunday, June 10, both dates inclusive. And any player who completes a net round during that period which is better than that turned in by Stan Leonard (for the men) and Mrs. Judy Darling Evans (for the women) will receive from the Royal Canadian Golf Association a medal "I beat the Champion."

Leonard and Mrs. Evans are the golfers to beat as 1961 Canadian PGA and women's amateur champions, respectively.

Special competitions are to be arranged by the local clubs during National Golf Week. In charge of organization at the club level will be Bill Garner (Colwood), Sid Holland (Gorge Vale), Jim Reside (Uplands), George Bigelow (Victoria), and Walter Spaven (Cedar Hill).

First of the season's big events—the Vancouver Island Open Match Play Championship is drawing near.

Qualifying round will be played at Uplands, Sunday, March 25, and the draw will be made on March 20. Entry is limited to 120 players.

Big interest is being shown in this popular event, won last year by Norm Boden of Gorge Vale. In addition to the championship there is a match play event on handicap lines.

Despite the hard ground and the chill winds, most golfers at the weekend took advantage of the bright sunshine, and courses were heavily patronized. But the top-notchers bled, and both the open and junior buttons, due to have been played at Uplands Sunday were postponed until next Sunday.

The players felt that the frozen greens would not provide a fair test of golf.

So, weather permitting, Ken Lawson and Gordon Pellow the new holders, will meet Fred Painter and Finley Watson of Gorge Vale at Uplands this weekend. Junior match is between Al Manson and Ernie MacFarlane of Victoria and Vic Derman and Ken Campbell of Gorge.

Victoria club has the reputation of being a short course that is simple for the top-notch golfer, but it doesn't always work out that way. When the wind blows, Victoria is by far the most difficult course in the district.

A bunch of high-ranking Vancouver golfers found this out last Friday when they paid a visit to the Oak Bay links when the gusts were pretty strong.

Among them was John Johnston, former Canadian champion and Willingdon Cupper who was making his first appearance at Oak Bay.

He was reportedly 12 over par at the end of nine holes.

The Victoria Golf Club has switched around the dates of its club events this year. The club championship, which usually begins in April will not start until June 9. The Rainbow Cup will be played April 14; the Galt Cup April 21, and the Challenger-Mitchell fouromes will begin April 28. Todd Cup is scheduled for July 21-23.

The season opens with the President vs. Captain match on March 31.

Skiers Plan Bus Journey

Victoria Sno Birds Ski Club has chartered a bus for those wishing to visit their Green Mountain development Sunday, March 4.

The ski club must have a minimum of 40 skiers to make the trip practical, however. Bus leaves Victoria at 8 a.m. arriving at the mountain parking lot at 9. It will depart for Victoria at 5 p.m., arriving back here at 8.

Those interested should telephone Al Price at GR 9-5420. Ski conditions are expected to be good. There is new snow on the slopes and chains or snow tires are required.

INVENTOR
NEW YORK (UPI)—The inventor of the epee handguard—one of the most important developments in the history of fencing—was Gonzalo De Cordova, a Spanish army captain, who died in 1513. De Cordova's famous sword is in the Madrid Museum.

But Time Running Out

Hull Has Record in Reach

Last year at this time all the talk in the National Hockey League centred around Bernie Geoffrion's assault on Rocket Richard's record of 50 goals in a season.

Well, don't look now, but another super-star is flirting

GP	W	L	T	P	A	Pts
Montreal	28	13	12	3	13	56
Toronto	28	14	11	3	10	53
Chicago	28	15	10	3	6	51
New York	28	16	9	3	12	49
Detroit	28	17	8	3	12	48
Boston	28	18	7	3	12	47

Sunday's scores: Montreal 3 at New York 2; Toronto 3 at Detroit 2; Chicago 3 at Boston 2.

Next games: Wednesday—Chicago at Toronto; Boston at New York.

with the record that Geoffrion tied last season.

Blond Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks, who took almost half the season to get in top playing form, suddenly has a chance, slight though it may be.

Hull scored his 38th goal of the season Sunday as the Hawks routed Boston Bruins, 5-0. With only 10 games left to get the 11 goals he needs to tie, Hull's chances have to be rated fairly slim—until you consider what he's been doing lately.

In his last 26 games, the husky Hawk winger has scored 25 goals, coming from nowhere to challenge for the NHL point lead.

As of Sunday's games, he is in second place, six points behind New York's Andy Bathgate.

point for Canadiens, who have been beaten only twice in their last 22 games. Bathgate got a goal and assist for the Rangers to keep even with the charging Hull in the individual point race.

Balanced scoring did it for the Leafs and Hawks, both showing plenty of attack in recent games.

The Dave Keon-Ed Litzenberger-George Armstrong line picked up nine points for the Leafs, each getting a goal and Armstrong getting three assists. Litzenberger two and Keon one.

Bob Pulford scored twice for the Leafs with Billy Harris, Frank Mahovlich and Tim Horton scoring once each. Mahovlich's goal was his 30th.

For the Hawks, the Hull scored his 38th goal of the season Sunday as the Hawks routed Boston Bruins, 5-0.

With only 10 games left to get the 11 goals he needs to tie, Hull's chances have to be rated fairly slim—until you consider what he's been doing lately.

In his last 26 games, the husky Hawk winger has scored 25 goals, coming from nowhere to challenge for the NHL point lead.

As of Sunday's games, he is in second place, six points behind New York's Andy Bathgate.

WILLIAM HAWKINS

Hawkins Has Figures

Tourist Trade Overrated? No!

Tourist commissioner William Hawkins last night took strong exception to a recent suggestion that Victoria's tourist trade is overrated.

The tourism reference was contained in a statement in Sunday's Colonist from Jack Barracough, president of the Victoria Symphony Society, that "the tourists come and go, but their importance is perhaps overrated."

"Overrated?" asked Mr.

Hawkins. "It is my opinion that the tourist business in Victoria and Vancouver is probably the most underrated source of income of any business."

He said he wonders "whether Mr. Barracough and others have a real idea of what the tourist business really means" to the island.

"For example, last year with some 85,000 tourists our figures show the minimum expenditure amounted to some $75,000,000 in payment of accommodation, food, gasoline, oil, car maintenance, newspapers, magazines, store purchases and incidentals."

He said this influx of "new money" provided employment for laborers, masons, electrical workers, painters, decorators, the service industries and many others serving the hotel, auto courts, restaurants and stores which deal with tourists.

The tourist commissioner also pointed out construction of the B.C. government ferries to accommodate an increased tourist business provided millions of dollars for employment of iron and steel workers, painters, carpenters and electrical workers in local shipyards.

Sign-Up for Survival

Drawing military gear, William Allison, 3211 Albion, and E. N. Calvert of Colwood were among 125 men who signed up at Bay Street Armory yesterday for third special militia training plan for nuclear survival. Elsewhere on Vancouver Island, Nanaimo had 75 men, Port Alberni 45 and Courtenay was trying to form a group of 12 for six-week course.—(Colonist photo.)

Deadly Blast Threat Due to Police Radio

An Oak Bay police car making a radio report on a car collision might have touched off a deadly blast of several charges of primed dynamite at a water main excavation on Monterey Avenue. It was learned last night.

Oak Bay council decided to post signs warning against use of transmitters near blasting operations.

Bit More Business Tax May Buy Seattle Booth

By TED SHACKLEFORD

A proposal that the city pay the $15,000 bill needed to open a Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau world's fair booth at Seattle, and recover the money through a slight boost in the business tax, will be considered by city council today.

The 11th-hour plan devised by Ald. Michael Griffin would add one-quarter of one per cent to the city's business tax for this year.

However, Publicity Bureau commissioner William Hawkins will confer with Seattle Chamber of Commerce officials this morning on an alternate plan which would scrap the booth.

Ald. Griffin's plan appears the only hope of keeping to the original plan of gaining the maximum amount of publicity at the Seattle fair.

"An increase of one-quarter of one per cent on the city's business tax will produce $14,576, based on last year's figures," he said.

"All businesses, large and small, will benefit in a most tangible way from tourist dollars, both directly and indirectly."

Hat in Ring

Federal nominating convention of New Democratic Party, held last night in Woodsworth Hall, chose socialist Harry Fanthorpe as standard-bearer in Victoria riding for next federal election.

Too Valuable to Lose

"Any general buoying-up of our local economy is reflected in all types of commercial enterprise."

"The booth is too valuable to this city for us to allow it to slip through our fingers," said Ald. Griffin.

"We will never again—in the foreseeable future—have a world's fair so close to Victoria and we must at all costs encourage tourists to visit Victoria."

"It will be worth millions of dollars to this city for years to come if we can keep this booth."

Only $15,000 remains to be raised for the $37,000 booth.

Ald. Griffin said it would be unfair for the city to take the $15,000 from general revenue as taxpayers have already contributed the $10,970 which council voted toward the cost.

"The plan will enable us to save the booth and will enable the city to recover the money on a fair basis."

"The increase will hardly be felt by city's businesses."

"A business paying $75 a year now, for instance, will only have to pay an additional $3."

Mr. Hawkins' flying trip to Seattle was arranged at an emergency meeting in Mayor Wilson's office yesterday.

Call Before Meeting

He was to negotiate with Seattle Chamber of Commerce officials in an attempt to have island publicity distributed through the chamber's booth.

His trip is an indication publicity bureau directors have given up hope of retaining the booth, and don't expect anything to come of the emergency council meeting.

Mr. Hawkins plans to telephone Mayor Wilson from Seattle before the council meets at 11:30 a.m., to advise whether he has been successful.

The meeting will also consider two letters dealing with the problem of the publicity booth.

One, from Herbert Watson, president of the Victoria branch of the Vancouver Island Ratepayers' Association, flatly opposes any donation from general revenue.

"The small person, those who are property owners in the city and do not carry on a business of any kind, should not be taxed for the benefit of hotels, motels and department stores," Mr. Watson wrote.

"If the general taxpayer in the city wants improvements to his home, the hotels, motels and department stores, etc., will not help with the repairs."

And former city alderman Elmer McEwen stated business owners are being unfairly blamed for not contributing to the booth fund.

"As far as we know, the business people were not asked whether they wanted the booth or not, and for someone else to spend the money any way they wished, with no questions asked," Mr. McEwen wrote.

"Also, there has been no request for money from the business people—to our knowledge—except what is carried in the press, and in which the business people have been accused of not paying their fair share, when in fact they are more than willing to carry their share when asked to do so."

Mr. McEwen accused city council, including councils of which he was a member, of making it difficult for downtown businessmen to operate.

He laid out a list of "mistakes" by former city councils and proposed a program to correct the situation.

The latter point struck colleague Jim Penneck as a little odd.

After all, women spend millions every year on lipstick, powder and cosmetics merely to make the package look a little fancier!

Four Injured In Car Crash

Four persons, three of them from one family, were injured yesterday in a head-on crash on Sooke Road outside the Sooke RCMP station.

Taken to St. Joseph's Hospital by Sooke ambulance were Valton Regan, Townsend Road, Sooke; his wife Gwen; their daughter Ann, 12, and the young daughter of a friend whose mother is on the mainland and had not been notified last night.

Sooke RCMP said Mr. Regan was driver of one car with the other injured persons his passengers; the second car was driven by Gerhart Hansen, also of Sooke. One of the cars was making a left turn when the cars crashed at 6:45 p.m.

FACE CUTS Both Mr. and Mrs. Regan sustained face cuts; the former an injured arm and his wife an injured leg. Ann Regan sustained a slight concussion and abrasions; the other child facial bruises and contusions.

James B. Severn, 1794 Lansdowne, was treated for face cuts at Royal Jubilee Hospital and released yesterday after a collision at 3:15 p.m. on the Trans-Canada Highway at Helmcken.

CUT LIP Earlier in the afternoon city police were advised that four-year-old Gary Rhodes, 2003 Cameron, had suffered a cut lip when he ran from the curb on Pembroke into a car driven by a juvenile.

Another four-year-old, Anita Abbott of 4085 Cedar Hill Cross Road, was injured in a similar accident at about 5 p.m. Search police said the child ran out onto Nicholson Road in front of a car

Faulty Wiring Blamed In Shop Blaze

Fire which was believed started by faulty wiring in the offices of George Straith Ltd. Sunday caused tens of thousands of dollars' damage to racks of clothing inside the store.

During the four hours city firemen fought the stubborn blaze, it was held to a comparatively small area in the offices.

SMOKE DAMAGE Officials of the company were not available for comment last night. Fire chief James Bayliss said smoke caused considerably more damage than did the flames, which he said may have been caused by faulty wiring.

George Straith Jr. said earlier no plans had been made for the future, but men were already at work attempting to salvage the smoke-damaged clothing with a special process.

FIREFMAN TREATED Fireman Bert Wilkinson was overcome by smoke and was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital where he was treated and released.

$431 Raised

The Chinatown Lions Club raised $431 at a benefit dance for the seven-member family of Sam Ping Lee, whose rented home at 713 Pembroke burned Feb. 27. The Lees now are living at 2361 Oak Street.

Roundabout Barricades Plan Near?

Signs are favorable for installation of a new system of traffic control at the Fountain Circle.

First proposed Jan. 16 by Ald. Millard Mooney, the plan has been stalled since then while city officials ponder the probable effects of the move.

Reports are not all completed, the Colonist found yesterday, but indications are the plan will be tried shortly.

BARRICADES

Ald. Mooney's plan is to put a barricade between the Fountain Circle curb and the traffic islands in Government Street during rush hours.

This would stop southbound traffic swinging around the circle and across Douglas Street traffic to Hillside Avenue.

Northbound traffic on Government Street would still be able to swing across to Hillside.

Impaired Driver Jailed

An eight-month jail sentence was handed down in city police court yesterday to a Victoria driver who pleaded guilty to charges of impaired driving and driving while his license was suspended.

John Alexander Sweezy, 1124 McKenzie was visibly shaken when Magistrate William Oatler imposed a four-month term for each offence—with the sentences to be consecutive.

The prosecution said Sweezy's car careened over the curb at Johnson and Douglas, and that he was "obviously drunk" when police caught up with him on Yates Street.

During the past three years Sweezy had been convicted of three similar charges.

Strings Tonight Marie Milburn will conduct the Oak Bay Junior High School string orchestra at a meeting of Oak Bay Junior High School PTA at 8 p.m. tonight in the school.

On the graves of Premiers Theodore Davis, G. A. Walker, and Sir Richard McBride, new stone markers have been installed describing the individual's public life.

A $1,000 provincial grant is financing the project.

Boss Bay Cemetery committee is investigating the feasibility of restoring the graves of 161 former city councillors, aldermen and mayors as a centennial project.

Ald. A. W. Toome, chairman of the committee, said last night the graves are being inspected to see if repairs are needed.

Chevrier, Green To Speak Former Liberal minister of transport and president of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, Lionel Chevrier has two speaking engagements in Victoria today.

He will address Victoria Kiwanis Club at the Empress Hotel at noon and the nominating convention of the Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal Association at Tillikum School at 8 p.m.

External Affairs Minister Green will address two groups here Thursday and speak to a Victoria Conservative nomination meeting Saturday.

He will address Victoria Rotary Club at the Empress Hotel at noon and the UN Association at St. Andrew's Kirk Hall at 8 p.m. Thursday.

He will speak at S. J. Willis Junior High School at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Foresters Ready For Celebration

Fiftieth anniversary of the establishment of the B.C. Forest Service will be highlighted by a banquet at the Empress Hotel Friday.

It also will be marked with a forestry administration display which opens today in the rotunda of the legislative buildings.

Forest management and administration was introduced in this province Feb. 27, 1912, with the passage of the B.C. Forest Act.

Main banquet speakers will be H. R. MacMillan, the prov-

Headlines Demanded On Fleming Failure

An angry Premier Bennett yesterday demanded that B.C. newspapers print stories "with big black headlines" explaining that federal Finance Minister Donald Fleming hadn't replied to his latest bid for talks on the financing of the Columbia River power project.

Four weeks ago yesterday, Premier Bennett sent a special delivery letter to Mr. Fleming in an attempt to arrange a face-to-face meeting either here or in Ottawa.

"I haven't even had so much as a routine acknowledgment," the premier told reporters outside the cabinet room yesterday.

"If this situation was reversed... if it was me who hadn't replied to a letter from

Mr. Fleming... your papers would be printing big stories," he declared. "But as it is you print nothing."

A reporter said he would print a column about it.

"Yes, my friend," answered the premier. "But get it on the front page with big black headlines."

With his thumb and forefinger the premier indicated he wanted headlines at least two inches high.

In House Today

The legislature will hold its first night sitting in more than two weeks tonight at 8:30 p.m.

The budget debate will wind up in the afternoon with only two speakers—Randolph Harding (NDP—CUT—Kaslo-Slocan) and Lands and Forests Minister Williston.

After the debate in B. House the legislature will turn to consideration of department estimates for the coming fiscal year.

Inc's first chief forester, who will cut short a Caribbean fishing trip for the event, and Dr. C. D. Orchard of Victoria, former deputy minister of forests and a former chief forester.

The Friday night schedule is reception at 6:30 p.m., dinner at 7:30 p.m. and a dance at the Crystal Garden from 8:30 p.m. to 1 a.m.

District foresters, assistants and senior members of the service in Victoria yesterday started a week-long review conference of forestry problems in the legislative buildings.

Gaily Wrapped Packages Not Quite Women's Dish

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE: A delegation of women representing the B.C. branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada not only spoke out against trading stamp schemes yesterday—they were opposed to fancy packaging as well.

The latter point struck colleague Jim Penneck as a little odd.

After all, women spend millions every year on lipstick, powder and cosmetics merely to make the package look a little fancier!

HOWS THAT AGAIN, DEPT.: Quote by Prime Minister Diefenbaker when asked about the possibility of Canada joining the Organization of American States...

"Determination of the final course is not completely free of considerations which might flow from that action which are not entirely in the interests of this country."

GREEN GROWS THE GRASS: An American newspaper from Boise, Idaho, called merely circulated around the here last week to get some stories on Canada's plans for the development of the Columbia River power project.

He emerged from a two-hour interview with Premier Bennett, shaking his head.

"Say," he asked a press gallery regular. "Have you ever had the impression that your premier is prone to bluffing?"

REDUCED TO CLEAR: What with all this talk about whether or not there'll be a Vancouver Island booth at Seattle's Century 21 world's fair, Bill Hughes suggests much better results could be obtained if a few people, dressed in Lee Norris-style garb, merely circulated around the fair grounds distributing come-to-Victoria literature...

In response to a place here the other day about the search by the Maritime Museum for a print of HMS Bacchante, flagship of the Pacific station at Esquimalt from 1880 to 1882, curator Bill Symmes reports he now has one. It is a reproduction of a painting by Montague Dawson and was donated by Mrs. E. A. Nelson of Sidney... A special exhibit in the rotunda of the legislative building featuring 50 years of federal administration in B.C. will open today to mark the passing of the original B.C. Forest Act Feb. 27, 1912.

THE THINGS WE HEAR: Apparently Attorney General

Robert Bonner made a most undignified entrance to his station wagon yesterday when he found he'd locked his keys in his car.

Actually it's an offence to leave one's keys in a car anyway.

After puzzling over the situation for a few moments last night, Mr. Bonner decided the problem was to climb through a window.

SELF-SERVICE: Out-of-town friend of ours reports walking into the Empress Hotel and asking for a room and bath.

"We've got a room," replied the desk clerk, "but you'll have to bath yourself."

BEST WISHES: Special birthday greetings were extended by the legislature yesterday to Lieutenant-Governor George Faneuse, VC, celebrating his 74th birthday.

B.C. is indeed fortunate in having Gen. Faneuse as its lieutenant-governor, said Premier Bennett.

Miss Lucy Woodrow, left, director of nursing at the Royal Jubilee Hospital from 1948 to 1956, and the present director, Miss Muriel Thomson, will be guests of honor at the Royal Jubilee Hospital Alumnae reunion dinner to be held at the Victoria Golf Club on Friday, March 2, at 8 p.m.

Home Ec. Group Discusses Part of Chant Report

Victoria Home Economics and Dietetic Association met recently at the Art Gallery. Miss Ivy Humberstone as chairman of the panel on "Chant Report" introduced the members, Mrs. R. Martin, Mr. Bernard Gillie and Mr. V. Thompson.

The primary aim of education as defined under the Chant Report is that of promoting the intellectual development of the child. The academic interpretation of this disregards the previous idea of producing a good citizen, stressing only the development of the intellect.

The main changes will take place at the Junior High level which is to be known as the Junior Secondary School which presents a special problem in Victoria with its separate junior high schools. The Senior Secondary School will not see many changes for two or three years.

The main emphasis at the junior secondary level will be on the core inner subjects, reading, language, English and maths, with the inner zone subjects, such as science, history, geography and languages receiving emphasis, but the outer core subjects such as music, drama, physical education, industrial arts and home economics are to be cut down. These latter subjects, as far as the public is concerned, have not proven their contribution to general education.

Miss Ivy Humberstone expressed sincere thanks on behalf of the group.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy, 17. My parents are wonderful but they are too strict.

I am a fair student and manage pretty well in most subjects but I am failing biology. My mother and father can't help me because they don't remember anything about biology. My girl friend is very good at it and she has been helping me several evenings a week after supper.

After my last report card my parents decided I should stay home evenings and figure out the biology homework myself. My mother claims all we do is dance and that my girl does the work after I leave which is why I don't know anything. I was really making great progress until the folks lowered the boom on me. Please help.—BUM GRADES.

Dear Ann Landers: You would do better with biology if there were no chemistry to worry about.

Get a fellow to help you with your homework. Or ask your folks to hire a tutor. Your report card suggests you have been doing more dancing than reading.

Dear Ann: I'm engaged to a handsome guy who has a way with women. He wants me to marry him but insists that we keep it a secret. When I asked why he said because marriage will be an emotional shock to his system and he must get used to it gradually.

I was willing until he asked for $200. He hasn't worked for two months and didn't want to let me. He owes on his car, his insurance and his rent.

I have a good job but I'm far from rich. I love him deeply but I don't want to support any man. He says when people are in love there is no yours and mine, only ours, and that everything in a family should be shared.

He swears by your column and says this is your philosophy, too. I'm confused and I need your help.—CLOUDY SKIES.

Dear Cloudy: I believe in sharing. I also believe both parties should contribute something. What is he contributing besides his good looks? Don't float any loans to this guy and don't marry him secretly. Marry him only when he has a job and is willing to carry his share of the financial load.

Dear Ann Landers: This is a hard letter for me to write. I don't know where to start. My wife and I have been married for 18 years. We have a daughter 16 and a son 12. Our home is paid for and we have no money worries.

Our problems began about ten years ago when an old family friend (hers) came to visit us. He seemed to like our home and got himself a job and just stayed. After about two years I noticed my wife was acting cool toward me. I finally discovered that my wife—this "family friend"—was carrying on right under my nose. I should have thrown him out then but I didn't have the nerve.

Now my wife has asked for a divorce. She wants to take the children and leave with this man. Her lawyer told her she has no grounds for divorce. The "friend" is still with us. She says if he leaves she leaves too. What can I do?—W.R.

Dear W.R.: Any man who knew what you knew and put up with it in his own home for eight years must have had a hard time in his head.

Inform your wife's "family friend" that he has 24 hours to get lost. If he wants to go with him, tell her goodbye—but that the children stay with you. To permit this arrangement to go unchallenged is immoral, indecent and stupid.

WHEN YOU BANK...

we try to be a little more human about it

Back in the old days, bankers were pretty fearsome people. They had Dignity, a Cold Eye, a Thin Mouth, Mutton Chop Whiskers, and a Ruthless Tendency to Foreclose Mortgages (or so we read!). The banker today is as human as you are, and just as businesslike. Drop into your branch of The Bank and see. You'll find that The Bank really has the people who make the happy difference in banking!

A TORONTO-DOMINION BANKING SERVICE: THE SAVINGS ACCOUNT

This is the first account most people open at The Bank. And for the wise ones, it is the last that is closed. Not too many years ago the Savings Account was a general catch-all where you deposited money and paid it out almost immediately by cheque. Garden Notes

Use Instant Starter

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRBS

I was shooting off my mouth last week about my new unbreakable plastic watering can, of which I am inordinately proud. It is a joy to use, not only for carrying a drink to a thirsty plant, but for administering various chemicals in the garden.

For instance, I have come to be a great believer in the use of a "starter" solution in the seed drills before sowing seeds outdoors. Any of the high-test "instant" kind of fertilizer can be used for this purpose at the rate of one tablespoonful per gallon of water.

Wetting down the shallow seed furrows with this solution not only provides quick and easily assimilated nutrients for the seedlings when they emerge, but the seeds stick where they fall on the wetted soil and don't get blown around by errant breezes. The watering can—without the "rose"—is used for this job. Pour the solution VERY slowly to avoid washing out the contours of the furrow.

The same solution is used for watering-in during planting and transplanting operations, but in this case a few drops of vitamin B1 is added to the fertilizer and water. Most of the garden books will tell you that the plants manufacture enough vitamin B1 in their leaf tips to supply their own needs, but in my experience it is invaluable for getting the roots off to a good start.

The stuff seems to act in much the same way as blood plasma in surgical operations—to lessen transplanting shock and to coat the plant along until the roots establish themselves in their new environment. Strawberries and tomato plants in particular respond in dramatic fashion to this treatment.

It is my wife's job to mix up the solution and to keep "rushing the can" to me while I am engaged in setting our bedding plants, and she has coined a name for the stuff—she calls it "Planter's Punch." Incidentally, instead of mixing fertilizer with vitamin B1, you could use a preparation called Transplantone or an all-purpose soluble fertilizer called Green Cross Lawn Green, already fortified with B1 and with a rooting hormone.

When we get a late, cold spring, a lot of the early-planted stuff just stands still for weeks on end, making no growth at all and looking very sorry for itself in the chilly north-east wind. Even when the weather takes a turn for the better, these plants which have suffered a chilling don't pick up and get going as they should.

In such situations, the watering can comes into use again, and the reluctant plants are jolted out of their lethargic stupor with a shot in the arm.

The chemical in this case is ordinary saltpetre, inexpensive and easily obtained at any drug store, and the dosage is two level tablespoons per gallon of water, and about half a gallon per running yard of row. This is a powerful stimulant, though, and should be given only once in any growing season.

City of Future in Ghettos

BRASILIA—"As a citizen, politician, or taxpayer, each one of us has the right to be against or in favor of Brasilia. But no one can ignore its reality, no matter whether considered a good or bad fact, reality concrete and tangible, distinctly human with all its greatness and misery," says a brochure defiantly.

Brasilia's reality is the one big fact. Every week a Rio newspaper in an editorial urges the capital be returned to Rio. But it won't be. Even those Brazilians who bitterly opposed building it in the first place are not they have sunk a billion dollars into. The idea of opening Brazil's lush, fertile, eminently livable and totally empty interior has been kicked around since 1789 and, 100 years from now, Brazilians will look back on the building of Brasilia as one of the historic turning points of this huge country and thank Juscelino Kubitschek (who incidentally, refused to live in the place himself) for launching it.

But now it's complaint time—and there are plenty of those. One of the biggest complaints is that Niemeyer has designed a series of ghettos. Nice ghettos but, nevertheless, ghettos where one is segregated with one's own kind. Americans live with Americans, French with French, British with British.

The Brazilians are having a terrible time getting grass to grow in the bleached earth, but this problem is being conquered with earth brought in from outside. But there is no place to sit down in the wide spaces between dwellings, just as there is no place to walk. Brasilia was designed for automobiles, but badly designed. There aren't nearly enough parking places. Already there are traffic problems on the main street, which is not wide enough.

The apartments are quite roomy and comfortable with big combination living-room-dining-rooms, one and a half baths, three big bedrooms, maid's quarters, nice kitchen and a nice balcony off the kitchen (which is quite common to most Brazilian apartments and a very good idea). But the residents will tell you they are much too noisy, letting in all the racket from the busy roads. One of the great failures of modern buildings is its absence of soundproofing. The low cost apartments, built for typists and secretaries, are tiny rooms, hot, ugly, noisy, badly designed, but cheap. "The kids like it here," an American housewife told me. There's not a great deal for them to do. They love playing in the mud, but their mother doesn't like it much. "It's very difficult for them to meet Brazilian children with these ghetto arrangements we live in. But next month school starts and the kids will meet Brazilian children there."

I drove to the airport in the cool of the dusk, the horizon stretching to infinity, like Wyoming or Oregon, in the clear air. The lights in the monotonous rectangular buildings began to wink on in the distance. (The first modern architect to discover a curved line is going to make a fortune.) From the airport, Brasilia looks like a postcard, a promise of a city, a sketch of a city rather than the real thing. I'd like to come back in about two years and see what time and people have done to it.

Hollywood Today

By Sheilah Graham

A Roman Stunt by Liz?

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Eddie Fisher is expected by his close friends to make an interesting announcement soon. Some cynical friends of mine are convinced the whole Elizabeth Taylor thing with the Richard Burton undertones was mere publicity for their Cleopatra love affair—he's Mark Antony in the movie. The public image of Elizabeth as a contented, rather plumpish housewife is a million miles away from what we expect of the fascinating Cleopatra, whom "age" cannot wither, nor custom stale her infinite variety.

Antony Quinn is having a back-screen battle with the 20th Century-Fox people and it could interfere with his co-starring role with Ingrid Bergman in The Visit. But Ingrid is saying if Quinn is not in the picture she won't be either.

Lee Marvin will join buddy John Wayne in John Ford's new film based on a James Michener story. Lee had a leading role with Wayne and Jimmy Stewart in Ford's The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance.

Gina Lollobrigida says she has no regrets about leaving Hollywood. "After all, I made a great deal of money there," says the practical Italian star, who seems to be back for good in her native Rome. So what will happen to her postponed Lady L., on which $2,000,000 was spent without the turning of a camera?

When publicist Don Prince went to work for producer Jerry Wald five years ago, Jerry told him: "You'll get ulcers working for me." "But I didn't get them," says Don complacently. "He did." . . . In spite of his recent severe illness, Wald is hard at work and happy about his Adventures of a Young Man, which Ernest Hemingway approved shortly before his death.

Carolyn Jones met director George Cukor at a party recently, and George said to Carolyn: "There's a wonderful part in Something's Got to Give for you. If and when we start this picture, will you do it?" Said Carolyn: "If I'm free, yes." That's how pictures are cast.

Gertrude Berg, who is happiest when in a crush of humanity, frequently wanders in downtown Los Angeles, which no one in Beverly Hills ever does. "Without people I get stale," says Gertrude. "I like to look at and listen to people who live in apartments that cost $50 a month, not $350."

Song writer Jule Styne once said Hollywood folks have been away too long from the centre of things—Broadway—to write a good play. But the Phoebe and Henry Ephron comedy "Take Her, She's Mine" is most enjoyable. Art Carney was a delight, and Phyllis Thaxter, who plays Art's wife, too. And college daughter Elizabeth Ashley must come to Hollywood and make a movie!

That Food Problem

No Room in Rocket

Space Explorers May Be 'Frozen'

OTTAWA (CP)—The feeding of space travellers on voyages lasting for years is one element of space exploration occupying the minds of Canadian scientists.

Food was no problem for astronauts John Glenn of the United States and Ghermann Titov of Russia. They merely squeezed a semi-liquid diet from tubes.

But to carry enough food for long space voyages appears impossible. Literally tons of food would be required and room in space rockets will be at a premium.

One solution is: Take your own garden with you. Oxygen can be regenerated from carbon dioxide through use of algae which would live on soil fortified by the body waste of the space voyager. In this way oxygen could be maintained in the space capsule and the excess algae harvested for food for the astronaut. So far, however, soups and solid foods made from algae have been found pretty unpalatable.

Dr. M. G. Whillans, assistant chief scientist and director of biosciences research in the Defence Research Board, has conducted a home experiment in his basement which showed that root and stem growth patterns of plants can be seriously disorganized if there is no consistent gravitational force acting on them.

Dr. Whillans planted some bean and sunflower seeds in a container which he hung in a dark corner of his basement. He rotated the container 90 degrees every eight hours. The U.S. Air Force heard of the experiment and asked for a complete account.

Besides portable hothouses, suggestions for solution of the feeding problem include hibernation of the space crew.

Dr. Whillans remarks in a paper on space problems that it might be possible to put an astronaut in a "deep freeze" some distant planet.

'Impossible' Film To Get Premiere

By HARRY ALLEN

Movie man-of-all-trades, Luigi Petrucci did the "impossible" when he made an Italian feature film with English subtitles in Canada. The 96-minute film, It Happened in Canada, in the Italian realistic tradition of Rossellini and Fellini, will have its world premiere at a Toronto theatre today.

Mr. Petrucci, 40, the film's producer, director, scenarist and cinematographer, made the film from savings and borrowings over protestations from everyone that it was impossible.

Asked how much he spent in making the film over a two-year period, Mr. Petrucci could only shake his head and say: "I spent whatever money I could put my hands on and there must be anywhere from 50 to 100 people to whom I owe money."

His cast of amateurs, whose only pay was the dinners promoted by Mr. Petrucci from a friendly Italian restaurant and an interest in the film's profits, was headed by a secretary, Gisela Zdenek.

Italian girls in Toronto refused to work in the film for no money, so Mr. Petrucci had to find a girl who looked Italian to play the part of the girl who comes to Canada to marry a man she has never seen.

Mr. Petrucci showed Miss Zdenek—who speaks only English and German—how to mouth the Italian words, then fitted the sounds spoken by an Italian girl to the leading lady's dialogue.

The film was shot mainly in Toronto's Italian quarter.

LONDON — President Kennedy's youngest brother was turned down by seven taxi drivers at London airport.

During a brief stopover on the way from Paris to Ireland, Edward (Ted) Kennedy tried to get a cab for a four-mile trip to attend mass at a Roman Catholic church. He was refused by waiting cabbies until he reached the eighth—and last—in line.

"We didn't know it was the president's brother but if we had, it would have made no difference," one cabbie explained later.

He said the airport cab drivers had a practice of referring short-trip passengers to the end of the line while they wait for longer-distance fares.

PARIS — Attorney General Robert Kennedy arrived here on his "unofficial, private visit" and learned he will meet with Charles de Gaulle.

LONG BEACH, Calif. — "It's overwhelming," said Mrs. Mae Wharton Hayes, 20, of the offers of help and money pouring in since she walked 23 miles to a hospital to see her baby. She didn't have the money for the bus fare to Los Angeles. Newspapers printed her story.

NEW DELHI — Krishnan Menon easily retained his seat in parliament on the basis of unofficial election returns.

COLOMBO, Ceylon — Governor-General Sir Oliver Goonesilleke, who may be questioned in connection with an unsuccessful coup here, has resigned. He will be succeeded by William Gopallawa, Ceylon's ambassador in Washington.

OTTAWA — Defence Minister Mackenzie said he believed his department should stay away from organizations promoting peace: "I feel these groups should pursue their activities without the Department of National Defence taking any active part in them."

LONDON — "God save our gracious queen, long live our noble duke," sang the choir at the Queen's chapel of the Savoy. The duke was not Prince Philip but the monarch in her capacity as Duke of Lancaster.

LONDON — Princess Margaret's husband, Lord Snowdon, has joined Britain's union for journalists. No member of the British Royal Family has been known previously to be a card-carrying member of a union.

Kick in the Theatre

VANCOUVER (CP) — The opening of Vancouver's new Queen Elizabeth Playhouse Sunday was an electrifying experience.

A combination of new carpet, stair handrail and cool, dry weather put a charge into the whole affair.

Those among the 2,000 visitors who shuffled across the blue carpet and then put a hand to the rail winced and jumped as static electricity crackled from their fingertips.

"Everyone got quite a kick out of it," cracked manager Ian Dobbin.

But outside of that the manager said everyone he talked to thought the new playhouse a gem.

Son Council Approved Terror

NELSON — The fraternal council of the Sons of Freedom Doukhobors has been supporting terrorism in British Columbia's Kootenay district, day and has so far cost a minimum of $55,188, based on actual totals of cheques paid out and estimates.

Tim Jmasoff, 46, told a special assize court sitting that council chairman John Perepolkin approved of dynamiting the old RCMP building here Jan. 27, 1960, and helped finance the bombing.

Jmasoff, father of five, and Paul Zaroubin, 23, were found guilty of dynamiting the old police quarters and of unlawful possession of explosives. They will be sentenced by Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton today.

The special assize court for the trial of 79 Sons of Freedom terrorist suspects is costing British Columbia $1,533 for each trial day, it was estimated.

The assize, which began Jan. 9, has entered its 37th day.

GRAND FORKS, B.C. (CP) — A man was killed here Monday when fire destroyed a brick and timber house in the west end of this south-central British Columbia city.

They said arson was not suspected.

Veteran Policeman John MacKay Dies

A veteran policeman and boatman, Capt. John MacKay, 66, of 646 Niagara Street, died Sunday after a lengthy illness.

Before coming to Canada, he served many years with the Edinburgh police force.

During the First World War he served in the Canadian Navy, and after the war aboard fisheries patrol boats and the B.C. ferry at Burns Lake.

He belonged to the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans Association and Tweedsmuir Lodge No. 152 AF & AM.

Surviving is a stepson, Samuel McKane of Nanaimo. Funeral services will be held at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday at Hayward's.

IRA Gives Up Rebels Dump Arms

DUBLIN (AP)—The outlawed Irish Republican Army announced last night it has abandoned its campaign of bombings and shootings, against the partition of Ireland. It added its members have dumped their arms.

The IRA decision was made public in a 1,000-word statement distributed to Dublin newspapers. It said the campaign had been called off because of lack of public support. It blamed government action to muzzle the press as the cause of this lack of popular enthusiasm.

The announcement brought an immediate welcome from the government of the republic of Ireland. A statement by Justice Minister Charles Haughey said: "It is good news that the campaign of violence in the vicinity of the border has been called off. It was a policy which Irish public opinion had rejected decisively."

Homework At School —At Night

STOKE ON TRENT, England (Reuters) — Some 20,000 local schoolchildren who prefer watching television westerns to doing their homework may find themselves headed back to the classrooms for an extra two hours every night.

Education officials say it may be the only way to get homework done.

Diem Escapes As Planes Blast Palace

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Two fighter-bombers with markings of the South Viet Nam air force blasted President Ngo Dinh Diem's palace with bombs, rockets and machine-guns today. But Radio Saigon announced an hour later that Diem and his family were safe.

The attackers also strafed Saigon airport.

The 61-year-old bachelor president, his brother Ngo Dinh Nhu and Nhu's wife were in the palace at the time.

USED BY NAVY

The government broadcast said one of the planes, identified by U.S. sources as AD-4 Skyraiders, crashed north of the capital. This plane is an attack craft used by the U.S. Navy during the Second World War and supplied by the United States to South Viet Nam's air force.

IN FLAMES

It was not immediately known who piloted the planes or what started the attack. The only military movements inside Saigon were by government troops setting up a defence perimeter around the palace, one wing of which was left in flames by the planes.

PILOT ARRESTED

A report from the South Viet Nam press agency received in Tokyo said the planes were piloted by rebel members of the South Viet Nam Air Force and that the pilot of the plane that crashed had been arrested.

U.S. officials in Washington, after receiving reports from Saigon, regarded the aerial attack as an isolated incident and not a widespread conspiracy to

Quebec Plans Sweep

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — Premier Jean Lesage disclosed yesterday the provincial government plans to set up a provincial lottery once the Criminal Code of Canada has been amended.

He told a Quebec Federation of Labor delegation his government had asked federal Justice Minister Fulton to give "serious and official consideration" to the Quebec government's request for an amendment to the code, which bars lotteries.

LIKE IRISH

The labor group had urged the government to set up a provincial lottery similar to the Irish hospitals sweepstakes. Revenues could go to public welfare projects, it suggested.

Mr. Lesage told the delegation his government had been discussing the proposed amendments to the Criminal Code with the federal justice department for the past 18 months, and Mr. Fulton had said a year ago his legal experts were preparing "an official report."

U.S. Base Threatened

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Cuban Premier Fidel Castro sent a communique to the Soviet Union promising to claim the U.S. naval station at Guantanamo Bay, Havana radio said Monday night in a broadcast monitored here.

"Cuba will demand its legal right to claim the U.S. Guantanamo naval base as the only foreign military outpost in its territory and has no intention of permitting military establishments of any nation within its boundaries," the note said.

Happy U.S. Astronaut Draws Hometown Roars

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP)—Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. and his family received a joyous, roaring welcome from their neighbors that almost got out of hand when they arrived home from their day of glory at Washington Monday.

Some 750 people — most of them teen-agers and children — were jammed around the home as the Glenns arrived at their house in this suburban city across the Potomac River from Washington.

ROPE'S BROKEN

The cheering crowd pushed forward, broke through the ropes set up by police to hold them back and surged quickly forward. The best the police could do then was to surround the Glenns by linking hands around them and escorting them up the driveway.

The Glenns went inside but a few minutes later the Lieutenant — Colonel, Mrs. Glenn and their two children, 14-year-old Lynn and 16-year-old David, came out on the porch.

"Coming home to you is like coming home to home folks," Glenn told them, adding:

"This has been one of the happiest days of my life."

GREAT BENEFITS

In Washington earlier, Glenn told a cheering Congress that space promises unimaginable benefits for mankind.

"As our knowledge of the universe in which we live increases, may God grant us the wisdom and guidance to use it wisely."

Despite a cold rain Pennsylvania Avenue was lined with cheering throngs as Glenn rode by in a procession from the White House to the Capitol.

Legislation was introduced in the House of Representatives yesterday to award the Congressional Medal of Honor — the highest United States decoration — to Glenn.

Instant A-Arms

OTTAWA (CP)—The government may have found a tentative, if awkward, way out of the nuclear weapons impasse—a fast delivery system for nuclear warheads from the United States to Canada in event of war.

Warheads Stand Irrks U.S.

WASHINGTON (CP)—United States military and diplomatic sources expressed disappointment Monday with the latest position of Prime Minister Diefenbaker on nuclear warheads.

They said that if the prime minister maintains his present stand no American warheads will be available for Canada's Bomarc missiles in time of peace.

American authorities said the Kennedy administration has no plans for asking Congress to revise the law which requires the U.S. to retain custody and control over all her nuclear warheads. The president is opposed to the spread of nuclear weapons control. A key Western proposal in the 18-country disarmament negotiations opening at Geneva March 14 will be a ban on the spread of nuclear weapons among non-nuclear powers.

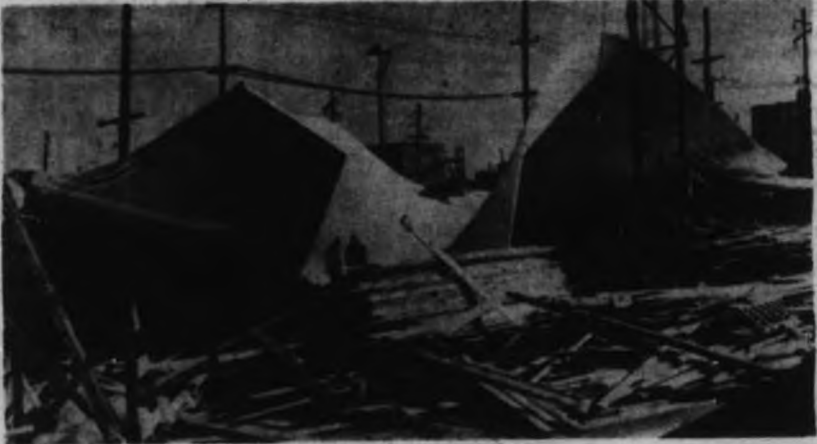

The U.S. has been urging Canada for some time to allow American warheads to be stored on Canadian soil, particularly on the Bomarc missiles and by fighter and interceptor squadrons.

REITERATES STAND

The prime minister reiterated that acquisition of nuclear weapons in peacetime would depend on "joint control" by Canada and the U.S. over such weapons stored on Canadian territory.

He said the U.S. has not accepted the Canadian meaning of "joint control" and that "so long as the law of the U.S. is as it is at present, joint control is impossible."

"We have stated that until the U.S. makes joint control available we do not intend to go further than we have unless war breaks out at which time we hope to have available to Canadians the necessary nuclear weapons."

Fair Gate Falls

Main exit gateway to Seattle World Fair, a 60-foot-high laminated wood arch, collapsed into heap of giant splinters yesterday. Gust of wind is thought to have caused the collapse. Fair officials are pondering whether to rebuild the arch or put up substitute gateway. Three men were standing under the entrance when it collapsed but escaped injury. —(AP Photofax).

Sparks from Wire

MLAs Sit On Fences

Verbal fencing on the subject of wire fencing got the legislature all tangled up yesterday.

It all started when Agriculture Minister Richter, explaining amendments to the Trespass Act, said wire manufacturers were no longer making No. 9 and No. 12 gauge wire for fences, in a 38-minute barbed-word debate:

● NDP-CCF leader Robert Strachan spoke out against combines and free enterprise.

● Gordon Dowding (NDP, CCF—Burnaby) made veiled references to fencing regulations imprisoning millions of people in eastern Europe.

● Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz had a ruling challenged and was upheld 31 to 15.

● Premier Bennett said wire manufacturers there could no longer be any doubt why farmer-politician Hazen Argue quit the NDP.

● Everyone voted for the bill except Mr. Dowding—so it will go down in the records that 45 members were in favor and one opposed.

Agriculture Minister Richter said the cabinet in future would set the size of wire that could be used in fences.

Mr. Strachan said it was "some coincidence" that all wire manufacturers had ceased making the wire at the same time and began to read from the restrictive trade practices report on operations of

Eternal Shame

"This is good, free, private enterprise," he said. "They sit around the table to see how much they can gouge out of the farmer."

He said it was the government's responsibility to see farmers weren't victimized by fence manufacturers.

"No, it's not," retorted Mr. Bonner. "Not this government."

"If the government is not prepared to do something to protect the farmers it is to its eternal and undying shame," replied Mr. Strachan.

Mr. Speaker Shantz said that Mr. Strachan should be talking about the principle of the bill.

"It's time people in B.C. know how farmers have been taken advantage of," retorted Mr. Strachan. "I'll finish this story during estimates."

Mr. Dowding then rose and said something about Social Credit trying to follow the lead of Communist countries by fencing people in.

"Get back to the general principle of the bill," thundered Mr. Speaker.

The member said the principle was that here was more authority being placed in the hands of the cabinet. Mr. Speaker disagreed.

"I challenge your ruling," said Mr. Dowding. "I think you're fencing me in."

Premier Bennett said the change had been sought by both the Farmers' Institutes and the B.C. Federation of Agriculture, and added: "We've seen an example today why the only farm representative in all of Western Canada (Hazen Argue) quit the CCF."

Three Lakes Planned For Uplands Park

Oak Bay's public works and parks committee will recommend council approve a five-year park development plan for the 60-acre Uplands Park.

The plan, which calls for expenditure of $74,152, will be built under the winter works program. Cost to the municipality will be $61,102.

The plan reviewed by the committee last night calls for reconstruction of three lakes in the park site, fed by a stream of water from a re-circulation pump and main.

Cost of this part of the project is estimated at about $25,000.

The lakes will measure about 100 feet by 80 feet and have a depth of three feet.

"I hope this won't mean we have to hire a bunch of lifeguards for these duck ponds," commented Coun. Allan Cox.

Another major part of the development program is grading, selling and seeding six acres of playing area. With installation of water supply, this will come to $15,880.

First stage to be undertaken would be construction of a network of culverts, costing approximately $24,900.

Death in Algiers

Every Eight Minutes

ALGERS (AP)—Murder struck Algiers every eight minutes through the noon hour Monday while French authorities began a campaign of "explaining peace" to Algeria's elected officials.

THREE WAVES

European gunmen swooped down in three waves on the heart of the city, shooting down all Moslems in sight.

Within 30 minutes after 11 a.m., 11 bodies were picked up on the Rue Michelet and the Rue d'Islam, the city's principal shopping streets.

By nightfall, police counted 37 dead and more than 40 wounded in Algiers.

Those dead included two Europeans whose heads were cut off, apparently by revenge-seeking Moslems. Fifteen Moslems were injured when a bomb hidden in a car exploded in the suburb of Molenat Carvee.

Down to Earth Astronaut Laughs at Weather

Andrews Air Force Base on the astronaut's arrival from Florida. Glenn and his wife, Annie, wore broad smiles despite steady rain as they moved along parade route from the White House to the

Capitol. Addressing a joint sitting of Congress, Glenn pinched nose and laughed when telling members that young Caroline Kennedy's first question on meeting him was: "Where the monkey?" Final shot shows Glenn making a point during his space flight speech to Congress. The astronaut later called it one of the happiest days of his life. —(AP Photofax.)

WILLIAM HAWKINS

Hawkins Has Figures

Tourist commissioner William Hawkins last night took strong exception to a recent suggestion that Victoria's tourist trade is overrated.

The tourism reference was contained in a statement in Sunday's Colonist from Jack Barrackough, president of the Victoria Symphony Society, that "the tourists come and go, but their importance is perhaps overrated."

"Overrated?" asked Mr.

Hawkins. "It is my opinion that the tourist business in Victoria and Vancouver is probably the most underrated source of income of any business."

He said he wonders "whether Mr. Barrackough and others have a real idea of what the tourist business really means" to the island.

"For example, last year with some 85,000 tourists our figures show the minimum expenditure amounted to some $75,000,000 in payment of accommodation, food, gasoline, car maintenance, newspapers, magazines, store purchases and incidentals."

He said this influx of "new money" provided employment for laborers, masons, electrical workers, painters, decorators, the service industries and many others serving the hotels, auto courts, restaurants and stores which deal with tourists.

The tourist commissioner also pointed out construction of the B.C. government ferries to accommodate an increased tourist business provided millions of dollars for employment of iron and steel workers, painters, carpenters and electrical workers in local shipyards.

Other Way Around

Tourist Trade Overrated? No!

Deadly Blast Threat
Due to Police Radio

An Oak Bay police car making a radio report on a car collision might have touched off a deadly blast of several charges of primed dynamite at a water main excavation on Monterey Avenue, it was learned last night.

Oak Bay council decided to post signs warning against use of transmitters near blasting operations.

Bit More Business Tax
May Buy Seattle Booth

By TED SHACKLEFORD

A proposal that the city pay the $15,000 bill needed to open a Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau world's fair booth at Seattle, and recover the money through a slight boost in the business tax, will be considered by city council today.

The 11th-hour plan devised by Ald. Michael Griffin would add one-quarter of one per cent to the city's business tax for this year.

However, Publicity Bureau commissioner William Hawkins will confer with Seattle Chamber of Commerce officials this morning on an alternate plan which would scrap the booth.

Ald. Griffin's plan appears the only hope of keeping to the original plan of gaining the maximum amount of publicity at the Seattle fair.

"An increase of one-quarter of one per cent on the city's business tax will produce $14,578, based on last year's figures," he said.

"All businesses, large and small, will benefit in a most tangible way from tourist dollars, both directly and indirectly."

Ald. Griffin said it would be unfair for the city to take the $15,000 from general revenue as taxpayers have already contributed the $10,970 which council voted toward the cost.

"The plan will enable us to save the booth and will enable the city to recover the money on a fair basis."

"The increase will hardly be felt by city's businesses."

"A business paying $75 a year now, for instance, will only have to pay an additional $3."

Mr. Hawkins' flying trip to Seattle was arranged at an emergency meeting in Mayor Wilson's office yesterday.

Call Before Meeting

He was to negotiate with Seattle Chamber of Commerce officials in an attempt to have island publicity distributed through the chamber's booth.

His trip is an indication publicity bureau directors have given up hope of retaining the booth, and don't expect anything to come of the emergency council meeting.

Mr. Hawkins plans to telephone Mayor Wilson from Seattle before the council meets at 11:30 a.m., to advise whether he has been successful.

The meeting will also consider two letters dealing with the problem of the publicity booth.

One, from Herbert Watson, president of the Victoria branch of the Vancouver Island Ratepayers' Association, flatly opposes any donation from general revenue.

"The small person, those who are property owners in the city and do not carry on a business of any kind, should not be taxed for the benefit of hotels, motels and department stores, etc.," Mr. Watson wrote.

"If the general taxpayer in the city wants improvements to his home, his hotels, motels and department stores, etc., will not help with the repairs."

And, former city alderman Elmer McEwen stated business are being unfairly blamed for not contributing to the booth fund.

"... As far as we know, the business people were not asked whether they wanted the booth or not, and for someone else to spend the money any way they wished, with no questions asked," Mr. McEwen wrote.

"Also, there has been no request for money from the business people—to our knowledge—except what is carried in the press, and in which the business people have been accused of not paying their fair share when in fact they are more than willing to carry their share when asked to do so."

Mr. McEwen accused city council, including council of which he was a member, of making it difficult for downtown businessmen to operate.

He laid out a list of "mistakes" by former city council and proposed a program to correct the situation.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Regan sustained face cuts; the former an injured arm and his wife an injured leg. Ann Regan suffered a slight concussion and abrasions; the other child facial bruises and contusions.

IRA Gives Up

Rebels Dump Arms

DUBLIN (AP)—The outlawed Irish Republican Army announced last night it has abandoned its campaign of bombings and shootings against the partition of Ireland. It added its members have dumped their arms.

The IRA decision was made public in a 1,000-word statement distributed to Dublin newspapers. It said the campaign had been called off because of lack of public support. It blamed government action to muzzle the press as the cause of this lack of popular enthusiasm.

immediate welcome from the government of the republic of Ireland. A statement by Justice Minister Charles Haughey said: "It is good news that the campaign of violence in the vicinity of the border has been called off. It was a policy which Irish public opinion had rejected decisively."

Monorail Link With B.C.?

VANCOUVER (CP)—Should the Seattle World Fair monorail prove an operational and financial success it will be extended afterward to connect cities of the Pacific northwest—possibly eventually including Vancouver — John D. Carrano, president of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, said today.

Planes Blast Diem's Palace

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Two fighter-bombers with markings of the South Viet Nam air force blasted President Ngo Dinh Diem's palace with bombs, rockets and machine-guns today. But Radio Saigon announced an hour later that Diem and his family were safe.

The attackers also strafed Saigon airport.

The 61-year-old bachelor president, his brother Ngo Dinh Nhu and Nhu's wife were in the palace at the time.

USED BY NAVY

The government broadcast said one of the planes, identified by U.S. sources as AD-6 Skyraiders, crashed north of the capital. This plane is an attack craft used by the U.S. Navy during the Second World War and supplied by the United States to South Viet Nam's air force.

IN FLAMES

It was not immediately known who piloted the planes or what started the attack. The only military movements inside Saigon were by government troops setting up a defence perimeter around the palace, one wing of which was left in flames by the planes.

PILOT ARRESTED

A report from South Viet Nam press agency received in Tokyo said the planes were piloted by rebel members of the South Viet Nam Air Force and that the pilot of the plane that crashed had been arrested.

U.S. officials in Washington, after receiving reports from Saigon, regarded the aerial attack as an isolated incident and not a widespread conspiracy to unseat Diem. The South Vietnamese president has been accused of trying to perpetuate a family dictatorship in his U.S.-protected country.

REPEATED PASSES

The planes made repeated passes over the presidential palace at low altitude dropping napalm (jelled gasoline), firing rockets and machine-guns.

The attack began at 6:58 a.m. and lasted 50 minutes. Light anti-aircraft guns and machine-guns on the ground fired back at the planes as they circled over the heart of the city before each pass.

Quebec Plans Sweep

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—Premier Jean Lesage disclosed yesterday the provincial government plans to set up a provincial lottery once the Criminal Code of Canada has been amended.

He told a Quebec Federation of Labor delegation his government had asked federal Justice Minister Fulton to give "serious and official consideration" to the Quebec government's request for an amendment to the code, which bars lotteries.

LIKE IRISH

The labor group had urged the government to set up a provincial lottery similar to the Irish hospitals sweepstakes. Revenues could go to public welfare projects, he suggested.

Mr. Lesage told the delegation his government had been discussing the proposed amendments to the Criminal Code with the federal justice department for the past 18 months, and Mr. Fulton had said a year ago his legal experts were preparing "an official report."

Instant A-Arms

OTTAWA (CP)—The government may have found a tentative, if awkward, way out of the nuclear weapons impasse—a fast delivery system for nuclear warheads from the United States to Canada in event of war.

Warheads Stand Irks U.S.

WASHINGTON (CP)—United States military and diplomatic sources expressed disappointment Monday with the latest position of Prime Minister Diefenbaker on nuclear warheads. They said that if the prime minister maintains his present stand, no American warheads will be available for Canada's Bomarc missiles in time of peace.

American authorities said the Kennedy administration has no plans for asking Congress to revise the law which requires the U.S. to retain custody and control over all her nuclear warheads. The president is opposed to the spread of nuclear weapons control. A key Western proposal in the 18-country disarmament negotiations opening at Geneva March 14 will be a ban on the spread of nuclear weapons among non-nuclear powers. The U.S. has been urging Canada for some time to allow American warheads to be stored on Canadian soil, particularly for use in the Bomarc missiles and by fighter and interceptor squadrons.

RIGHT CLAIMED

Mr. Diefenbaker said in reply to Opposition Leader Pearson that "... if war came, should nuclear weapons be used against us, Canadian troops participating should not be denied the right to use nuclear weapons."

Later, he said "... nuclear weapons should, in the event nuclear war was launched, be placed in the possession of Canadians."

REITERATES STAND

The prime minister reiterated that acquisition of nuclear weapons in peacetime would depend on "joint control" by Canada and the U.S. over such weapons stored on Canadian territory.

He said the U.S. has not accepted the Canadian meaning of "joint control" and that "as long as the law of the U.S. is as it is at present, joint control is impossible."

"We have stated that until the U.S. makes joint control available we do not intend to go further than we have unless war breaks out at which time we hope to have available to Canadians the necessary nuclear weapons."

Fair Gate Falls

Main east entryway to Seattle World Fair, a 40-foot-high laminated wood arch, collapsed into heap of giant splinters yesterday. Gust of wind in thought to have caused the collapse. Fair officials are pondering whether to rebuild the arch, or put up substitute gateway. Three men were standing under the entrance when it collapsed but escaped injury. — (AP Photofax).

Death in Algiers

Every Eight Minutes

ALGERS (AP)—Murder struck Algiers every eight minutes through the noon hour Monday while French authorities began a campaign of "explaining peace" to Algeria's elected officials.

THREE WAVES

European gunmen swooped down in three waves on the heart of the city, shooting down all Moslems in sight. Within 90 minutes after 11 a.m., 11 bodies were picked up on the Rue Michelet and the Rue d'Isly, the city's principal shopping streets.

By nightfall, police counted 37 dead and more than 49 wounded in Algiers.

Those dead included two Europeans whose heads were cut off, apparently by revenge-seeking Moslems. Fifteen Moslems were injured when a bomb hidden in a car exploded in the suburb of Mouson Carre.

Sparks from Wire

MLAs Sit On Fences

Verbal fencing on the subject of wire fencing got the legislature all tangled up yesterday.

It all started when Agriculture Minister Richter, explaining amendments to the Trespass Act, said wire manufacturers were no longer making No. 9 and No. 12 gauge wire for fences. In a 35-minute barbed-word debate:

● NDP-CCF leader Robert Strachan spoke out against combines and free enterprise.

● Gordon Dowding (NDP-CCF-Burnaby) made veiled references to fencing regulations imprisoning millions of people in eastern Europe.

● Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz had a ruling challenged and was upheld 31 to 15.

● Premier Bennett said

Eternal Shame

"This is good, free, private enterprise," he said. "They sit around the table to see how much they can gouge out of the farmer."

He said it was the government's responsibility to see farmers weren't victimized by fence manufacturers.

"No, it's not," retorted Mr. Bonner. "Not this government."

"If the government is not prepared to do something to protect the farmers it is to its eternal and undying shame," replied Mr. Strachan. Mr. Speaker Shantz said that Mr. Strachan should be talking about the principle of the bill.

"It's time people in B.C. knew how farmers have been taken advantage of," retorted Mr. Strachan. "I'll finish this story during estimates."

Happy U.S. Astronaut Draws Hometown Roars

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP)—Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. and his family received a joyous, roaring welcome from their neighbors that almost got out of hand when they arrived home from their day of glory at Washington Monday.

Some 750 people — most of them teen-agers and children — were jammed around the home as the Glenns arrived at their house in this suburban city across the Potomac River from Washington.

HOPE BROKEN

The cheering crowd pushed forward, broke through the ropes set up by police to hold them back and surged quickly forward. The best the police could do then was to surround the Glenns by linking hands around them and escorting them up the driveway.

The Glenns went inside but a few minutes later the Lieutenant — Colonel Mrs. Glenn and their two children, 14-year-old Lynn and 16-year-old David, came out on the porch. "Coming home to you is like coming home to home folks," Glenn told the crowd, adding: "This has been one of the happiest days of my life."

GREAT BENEFITS

In Washington earlier, Glenn told a cheering Congress that space promises unimaginable benefits for mankind.

"As our knowledge of the universe in which we live increases, may God grant us the wisdom and guidance to use it wisely."

Despite a cold rain Pennsylvania Avenue was lined with cheering throngs as Glenn rode by in a procession from the White House to the Capitol. Legislation was introduced in the House of Representatives yesterday to award the Congressional Medal of Honor — the highest United States decoration — to Glenn.

Congressman Frank Chelf (Dem.-Ky.) proposed a bill to grant the award to Glenn and his six fellow astronauts.

Three Lakes Planned For Uplands Park

Oak Bay's public works and parks committee will recommend council approve a five-year park development plan for the 60-acre Uplands Park.

The plan, which calls for expenditure of $74,152, will be built under the winter works program. Cost to the municipality will be $61,102.

The plan reviewed by the committee last night calls for construction of three lakes in the park site, fed by a stream of water from a re-circulation pump and main.

Cost of this part of the project is estimated at about $25,461.

The lakes will measure about 100 feet by 80 feet and have a depth of three feet.

"I hope this won't mean we have to hire a bunch of life-guards for these duck ponds," commented Coun. Allan Cox.

Another major part of the development program is grading, soil and seeding six acres of playing area. With installation of water supply, this will come to $15,880.

First stage to be undertaken would be construction of a network of culverts, costing approximately $24,999.

Down to Earth Astronaut Laughs at Weather

Andrews Air Force Base on the astronaut's arrival from Florida. Glenn and his wife, Annie, wore broad smiles despite steady rain as they moved along parade route from the White House to the Capitol. Addressing a joint sitting of Congress, Glenn pinched nose and laughed when telling members that young Caroline Kennedy's first question on meeting him was: "Where's the monkey?" Final
